Borah, Good American.
Only Chicken Feed.
1928 Good. Watch 1929.
Trotzky and Stalin.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

SENATOR BORAH, good American, fears that if we build cruisers without making arrangements satisfactory to Britain we shall have a "shipbuilding race with England." If necessary, why not have it?

But Britain couldn't afford it and knows that we shall never attack Britain unless we are first attacked.

THE British, while they could, dominated the seas, and were proud of it. Whoever didn't like it could lump it. That condition existed from the day when Nelson at Trafalgar wiped out Napoleon's chances of British conquest up to 1924.

IT IS Uncle Sam's turn now. Airplanes, submarines, fast cruisers will answer any question from any other nation, and this country should have the answer ready.

TO HIM that hath shall be given. Stock exchange seats, recently rising to $500,000 in value, have enabled some, tired of watching the ticker, to retire and look at the green fields.

NOW 275 new seats will be added to the 1,100 membership. From the proceeds every member will get $125,000. Once that would have been a good deal of money, even in Wall street. It is just "chicken feed" now.

MR. WHITING, secretary of Commerce, says 1928 was the greatest year in production and trade ever recorded. That's pleasing.

But wait until you see the figures for 1929. "Prosperity is the normal condition of this nation," as James Speyer said. There is nothing to frighten us but our own prosperity.

AS GENTLY as possible, tell the bears this, right from the Wall street "feed box:" "Enthusiasm carried dozens of stock issues into new high territory. It was the strongest, most active session of the stock market this year."

FEDERAL Reserve Bank made a fine statement. Brokers' loans were only slightly increased. People have money to pay for what they buy, and wise brokers demand big margins

On the whole, DON'T SELL SHORT. You might lose.

TROTZKY is reported to be in Afghanistan, raising an army to march against Russian Communists who threw him out.

One hundred and fifty of Trotzky's followers are locked in "rigorous isolation" for stirring discontent among unions and soldiers.

TROTZKY was a good military leader, defending Bolshevism against allied "capitalistic" attacks. He then had the heavy armies of young Russia back of him, full of revolutionary enthusiasm.

How much can he do against Stalin, with such an army as he could raise? Probably not much.

GROW your own fur coats at home. Mr. Vernon Bailey of the agricultural department tells you that muskrats, supposed to need big swamps, can be raised like rabbits or guinea pigs, in small pens. They need only enough water to keep comfortably wet and cool in summer. This will interest California rabbit raisers, among others.

VICTOR BERGER, honest, able, well educated member of Congress, whatever you may think of his theories, remembers that muskrats sold for two cents apiece in the streets of Milwaukee when he was a public school teacher.

Berger, a convinced Socialist, has a hard fight. The price of labor with its automobiles, radios, washing machines, has gone up almost as much as the price of muskrat skins. Old arguments are not as good as they were.

POOR GANDHI, the Mahatma, believes he can fight British trade by manufacturing cloth by hand in India. He will start another boycott on all foreign cloth.

As well try to fight modern taxicabs with hansom cabs. You can't change the world unless you keep up with it.

FORMER SENATOR UNDERWOOD died yesterday. He was a disappointed man. Twice he hoped to achieve the presidential nomination. From that disappointment no man recovers.

IN BUENOS AIRES, Paris Giannini, skillful driver, was killed with his mechanic in an automobile race. The car was No. 13. That will make the superstitious a little more superstitious, but it had nothing to do with Giannini's death.

NAVY BILL CONFLICT GROWS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—With President Coolidge joining the opposition, the Senate's big Navy advocates faced a stiff battle today to retain the time limit clause in the administration's new cruiser bill.

The President urged elimination of the time clause, which provides that the 15 new cruisers shall be laid down in three years, on the ground that it would conflict with the budget.

FINANCES STRESSED

He was represented as feeling it would be better for the government's financial condition to have the cruisers authorized without a time limit so the administration could start the construction work whenever federal finances were plenty.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, led the Senate opposition to the time clause. He said elimination of the time clause would give the United States a greater power to "trade" with foreign nations at the next disarmament conference. He also urged the calling of an international parley for a treaty on the protection of neutrals at sea during future wars, before any ships are built.

LEADERS PUZZLED

The administration leaders in the Senate were in a quandary as to how to act. Heretofore, they have stood behind Senator Hale, of Maine, "father" of the bill, who demands a three-year-limit on the time in which construction of the ships shall be started. With the President opposed to the time clause, new leaders may step forward to save the bill.

Senator Hale announced incidentally he would fight for retention of the time clause.

"I look upon it as one of the most important provisions of the bill," said Hale. "I will fight to retain it."

ALDERMAN TO BOND VERONA

Alderman John J. Verona and six others accused by Joseph Engelsberg in an alleged attack in a Hill district cabaret a few nights ago, have promised to post bond today on charges of aggravated assault and battery and surety of the peace, according to Alderman C. B. Quailey, of Oakland, before whom the charges were filed by Engelsberg.

If bond is not posted today the principals are liable to arrest and face possible detention in the Allegheny County Jail over the weekend.

Accused with Verona are James Lovuola, his constable; Anthony Siano, August Manfredo, Louis Manfredo, Angelo Scorza and John Doe, alias "Little Cokey," alias Scorza. Lovuola, who is said to have walked out of the club with part of Engelsberg's wearing apparel, is also charged with larceny. Engelsberg states that there was $360 in the vest Lovuola carried off.

"If it had been only one man, I wouldn't be doing this," Engelsberg said. "I would have defended myself and let it go at that, but this sort of thing is too much—your life isn't safe."

Verona, who was recently ousted as police magistrate in the Hill District, declared he would welcome any court action started by Engelsberg. He is said to have admitted being at the club, but denied participating in the attack. Alderman Quailey has scheduled a hearing for Friday night.

SEVERED RADIO WIRES CUT HUGHES' BAR TALK OFF AIR

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—A severed telephone wire that prevented broadcasting of a speech by Charles Evans Hughes was today the subject of an inquiry by radio officials who believed it cut with malicious intent.

Hughes spoke before the Bronx Bar Association and severely araignd the dishonorable and unprofessional elements of the New York bar. The speech was prepared well in advance and conjecture was that a copy of it might have fallen into the hands of someone inimical to the efforts being made by the association to purge the profession.

John Elwood, director of Radio Station WMCA, said he would demand a police investigation. He expressed certainty that the wires had been cut maliciously.

Hope Held for Peace In Fight Over Booth

LONDON, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Hope was held in some quarters today that there would be an amicable settlement of differences which arose in the Salvation Army when the high council ousted Gen. Bramwell Booth from command.

KINGSTON, W. Va., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—A terrific explosion in the No. 5 mine of the Kingston Pocahontas Coal Company early today was believed to have trapped 18 men, one of whom was reported by survivors to have met death. Fifty-three of those inside the mine at the time of the blast escaped through another entry on the opposite side of the mountain.

After hasty conferences with mine officials preliminary to starting rescue work, Chief R. M. Lambie, of the state mining department, announced that 18 men were unaccounted for, but that the others of the 71 men who composed the night crew had made their way to safety.

BODY RECOGNIZED

One of the survivors reported that while making his way out he came across a body in a passageway which he recognized as that of Blaine Parker. Another survivor said he saw a huddled bundle which might have been another body, but that he did not stop to investigate.

The blast, heard within a radius of a mile, came from the pit mouth with such force that it knocked over one small building and damaged others. No one was injured on the surface. The survivors reported that the underground passages were badly wrecked.

HEIR SEEKS DIVORCE IN PARIS

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Baldwin M. Baldwin, California millionaire, and Suzanne Lenglen, former tennis champion, who sailed for Europe early today on the liner Paris, plan to be married as soon as Baldwin can obtain a divorce from his present wife.

This sensational announcement was made by Dudley Field Malone, noted lawyer, who accompanied the party. Baldwin, the temperamental Suzanne and her mother, stood by in silent assent while Malone told reporter he would concentrate his efforts in Paris on securing a divorce for the millionaire.

As soon as the divorce is obtained, Malone declared, the couple will be married.

FATHER OF TWO CHILDREN

Baldwin is the father of two children. Malone did not reveal upon what grounds he would seek a divorce for the millionaire. The debonair lawyer has represented many other wealthy clients who untied the marital knot in the French capital.

TWO FOREIGN BEAUTIES, STRANDED, SEEK AID HERE

Miss Spain and Miss Paris are Pittsburgh's guests.

They were ousted in Johnstown from the International Beauties, Inc., a group of fair maids imported to troupe the small cities of the United States. The fair pair arrived here to land under the protective wing of Dr. A. Leteve, French consul. Today both girls were summoned before Immigration Commissioner William G. Marshall to tell their stories.

Dr. Leteve found hotel quarters for them last night and today is hunting them jobs. Miss Spain is Jacqueline Cobra, Miss Paris is Josane Veret. Both are former dancers of the Folies Bergere.

Meanwhile, Kivie Wolfe, attorney for the French consul, has sought an explanation from James Carrier, manager of the show, now playing in Butler. The girls maintain that they were ejected through inability to pay their laundry and hotel bills, for which they contend the Beauty Show people were responsible. Attorney Wolfe said Carrier promised to pay a visit late today to the French consul's office. He has bonds of $1,000 posted with the U. S. government guaranteeing protection for the girls.

BANDITS KIDNAP AND ROB ANOTHER GAS STATION MANAGER

DOG THAT BIT SIX FOUND RABID

The dog which bit six persons on the South Side yesterday, and was shot and killed after a chase of 22 blocks, was suffering from rabies, according to the report of West Penn Hospital authorities to the South Side police.

Among those bitten are: Grover Washabaugh, physical director, South High School; John Zew, 705 Carson street; John Manko, 22, Enon way; Joseph Fink, 2123 Carson street; Thomas McElhan, 154 South Twentieth street, and Fred Dusdech, 204 Elnora street. A dog owned by A. J. Freund, 2228 Carson street, was also bitten by the rabid dog.

The dog, according to the South Side police, was owned by Allen Greaves, 1705 State street, Coraopolis. It attacked more than a score of persons, all of whose names, the police say, they could not learn and was finally cornered in a blind alley at Carson and South Thirty-sixth streets by Patrolman Louis Foster. The officer killed the animal with 18 revolver shots. The chase started at South Thirteenth and Carson streets after police had received telephone calls from Carson and South Second street.

Charles Mertz, 15, of 20 Regina street, was bitten on the hand by his own dog yesterday while playing in his home.

In accordance with a proclamation issued some time ago, beginning Monday, the Dormont police will open vigorous warfare on all stray and unlicensed dogs. Police Chief Albert Ruehling announces that all such dogs will be taken into custody and later shot.

LENGLEN WILL WED BALDWIN

rounded the tennis star and her suitor since the hurried departure of the Lenglens from the Baldwin home in California. At that time the millionaire's mother, who had been entertaining Mme. and Mlle. Lenglen, denied that she had quarrelled with them. A few days later the guests departed for New York, to be followed shortly by the heir to the Baldwin fortunes.

DEFY TO MRS. BALDWIN

Reporters on shipboard last night asked Baldwin about reports that his mother objected to his attentions to the tennis star. Suzanne interrupted:

"Mother Baldwin? Pouf!"—this with an airy snap of the fingers.

Baldwin was cornered after he had knocked down a photographer who snapped a flashlight of the party. Suzanne and Lenglen were aided in routing the photographer, who bit the millionaire's hand before being subdued

Baldwin, who is the grandson of the late "Lucky" Baldwin, famous California plunger, then revealed that he planned an extended stay abroad.

GONE FOR TWO YEARS

"That picture won't do you any good," he shouted over his shoulder to the crestfallen photographer. "I won't be back to this country for two years."

Baldwin said he would wed Suzanne in defiance of a threat made by his mother, Mrs. Anita Baldwin, that she would cut him off from his share of the millions left by his grandfather.

He said he had lived long enough in France to satisfy the six-month residence requirement to seek a decree, and intimated that proceedings will start at once.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Mrs. Anita Baldwin, mother of Baldwin M. Baldwin, declined to comment on dispatches from New York last night that her son was accompanying Suzanne Lenglen to France.

RALLY TO HEAR PASTOR REPLY TO FAULKNER

Ways and means of removing Police Inspector Charles Faulkner from command of the North Side district and a program of community cleanup will be discussed tonight at a mass meeting in North Side's Carnegie Hall, called by a group of North Side clergymen. The meeting was arranged after squads of prohibition agents had entered the district several times and raided more than 30 clubs and saloons.

Yesterday afternoon, the Rev. J. Alvin Orr, of the First United Presbyterian Church, received a letter from Faulkner declaring that the police had not been idle in his district and that many raids had been made by the men under his command. Faulkner said an injustice was being done him in the demand for his removal on the strength of recent indictments in the Federal and County Courts. He pointed out that while he was under indictment for conspiracy to violate the dry laws, he had not been found guilty.

Dr. Orr claimed after receiving the letter that he would endeavor to answer it in full from the platform tonight. Faulkner in his letter gave a record of the raids made by his men. He said that it was not his fault if the prisoners were not prosecuted. He also declared he had always been willing to cooperate with Federal agents.

Weather Conditions.

The cold wave high stretches from the Canadian Northwest southeastward to the South Atlantic states in the form of a narrow ridge. It caused a decided drop in temperature over the states east of the Mississippi. At Pittsburgh the temprature dropped from 55 degrees at 1 p. m. yesterday to 16 degrees at 8 a. m. today.

Low pressure covers the West, with centers in Colorado and in Idaho. Lowest barometer, 29.60 inches, at Pueblo and at Pocatello. The disturbance is causing cloudy weather over the Rocky Mountain states and the Western Plains states, and light snow in the Rocky Mountains. It is also causing rising temperatures west of the Mississippi River. From the central plains eastward the skies are mostly clear.

River Conditions.

There was a slight rise in the lower Allegheny River, the Monongahela and the Ohio due to the rains reported yesterday morning. The rivers are now about stationary. Stage at Pittsburgh is 17.0; Dam No. 2, 9.2, and Dam No. 6, 17.8. The Ohio will fall about a foot by Sunday morning.

WARM WELCOME AWAITS SEA HEROES NEARING N. Y.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—The heroic captain and crew of the United States liner America this afternoon will receive the first installment of New York City's welcome in recognition of their feat in saving 32 men aboard the sinking Italian freighter Florida.

As the liner neared Ambrose Lightship this morning, city officials prepared to board the welcoming boat Macom, which was to meet the America at quarantine this afternoon. Airplanes will drone a greeting from the sky, and every citizen fortunate enough to own a motor boat prepared to join the procession of harbor craft whose sirens will shriek a welcome to the returning heroes. Another feature of the welcome will be a water display by the city's fireboats at the Battery.

WHALEN CHIEF GREETER

A banquet at the Hotel Roosevelt, which many prominent citizens will attend, and a round of other receptions are in store for Capt. George Fried and crew of the staunch ship which raced 350 miles through mountainous seas to the rescue of the men aboard the sinking freighter.

Grover Whalen, police commissioner and chairman of the Mayor's reception committee for the reception of distinguished guests, will head the delegation aboard the Macom. He will be performing an encore when he greets Capt. Fried, for he had the same honor three years ago when the city acclaimed the doughty little skipper for his feat in saving the crew of the sinking British freighter Antinoe in mid-Atlantic.

ON RADIO TONIGHT

In additon to Capt. Fried two other men aboard the America are twice-proved heroes. They are Salvatore Bracco, chief storekeeper, and Nelson Smith, chief radio operator. Bracco aided in the rescue of 38 men from the Italian freighter Ignazio Florio, on the storm-tossed Atlantic by the crew of the President Harding in 1925, and Smith stuck to his key for four weary days during the rescue of the Antinoe.

Fried has modestly disclaimed all credit for his part in the rescue, while Chief Officer Harry Manning declined to accept his share of a $1,000 purse presented to the lifeboat crew by the passengers of the America. Both will tell of the rescue tonight over the radio from WOR.

SUB ZERO IN MID-WEST

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Winter today had encased the North, South and Middle West in snow and sub-zero weather and pelted the East with snow, sleet and rain.

In some areas the weather was moderating, but for the most part a continuance of the cold wave, with more snow and freezing temperatures, was predicted.

The storms' widespread intensity brought discomfort and hardship in several states and accounted for the eighth death of the week in the Northwest.

In many rural districts of the Midwest driving was impossible, with roads piled high with snow. Telegraph and telephone wires were down in many communities.

CITY OFFICIALS ASK QUASHING OF RUM CASE

The federal court was asked to quash the liquor conspiracy indictment against officers of the Union Fishing Club, today, on the ground that the indictment fails to name any prosecutor or any of the witnesses who appeared before the grand jury.

Hilldorfer, North Side politician, are among the 16 defendants charged with conspiring to violate the national prohibition laws by selling high-test liquor on the club's premises, East Diamond street.

METRO BOARD OF 30 URGED

Leaders of the Allegheny county Democratic party met yesterday with the Metropolitan Plan Commission and discussed political features of the metropolitan charter. David L. Lawrence, county chairman of the party, headed the delegation. Mr. Lawrence said he was in favor of working out a plan of district representation.

Percy Williams, a member of the committee, advocated the Hare plan of "single transferable vote." This system would be used in selecting members of the ruling body of commissioners. William D. Grimes also saw the commission yesterday and advocated the naming of at least 30 commissioners under the charter. He believes the larger the number of commissioners the less political control there would be.

WEST ENDER HELD IN CAR BY THUGS

While city detectives and police, armed with shot guns, tear gas maces and bombs, patroled the city in automobiles with orders to "shoot to kill" to curb the crime wave, bandits kidnaped another gasoline station manager and after taking the victim for a 15-mile ride, dumped him out on a county road. Their loot was $47.

The victim is Nicholas W. Wroblewski, of 521 South Main street, manager of the Wabash Service Station, at 200 South Main street. He was confronted in the station by a pair of armed bandits late last night and after scooping up $17 from the cash register, they forced Wroblewski into their automobile and sped away. Reaching the Steubenville pike, near Imperial, the robbers took $30 from his pockets and threw him out of the car.

Wroblewski made his way to a telephone and notified police. The victim was unable to tell the make of the bandit car, which bore Ohio license plates, but furnished police good descriptions of his captors.

Within the last three days two attendants have been kidnaped and robbed in a similar manner and police believe it the work of the same pair.

Numerous other holdups and robberies have occurred in the last few weeks. Val Paul, cab driver, of 35 Lafferty avenue, who was shot by a Negro robber Thursday night at Preble avenue and Seymour street, was reported in a critical condition at St. John's Hospital.

SMALL FRY LET OFF WITH FNES

Cleskeak, Sam Sapp, Winfield Winston, Andrew Woods, James L. Ryan, James Skopetos, Deat Certi, Max Witkowski and Paul C. Eschard.

Small and Ennis were charged with keeping gambling houses, the others were charged with maintaining gambling devices.

The 123 offenders, arraigned in one group, were described by Gardner as first offenders.

In handing out the fines, Judge James B. Drew said:

"You don't look like criminals. This business of maintaining slot machines, with which you are charged, has been going on in city and county for years with what should have been the knowledge of the forces of law and order."

FORNEY ENTERS PLEA

Alfred W. Forney, alleged slot-machine king, listed to plead today, entered his plea, not guilty, yesterday before Judge Drew. Forney was in jail on arraignment day and was released last Sunday.

The plea was entered following an argument before Judges Drew and A. B. Reid on a motion to quash the indictments against Forney which was denied. The motion was offered by Attorney H. D. Hirsch, representing Forney. District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner opposed it. Forney is indicted on 15 charges of maintaining a gambling device.

The pleas being disposed of today were entered by the so-called "small fry" caught in the probe No important defendants entered guilty pleas and with several exceptions have been listed for trial. Of the 154 who entered guilty pleas, 14 are charged with maintaining slot machines, six with violation of the prohibition law, three with conducting a lottery and one with perjury.

HARRY ROTHMAN ACQUITTED

The first trial of charges resulting from the probe came yesterday in the acquittal of Harry Rothman, of Beechwood boulevard, accused of illegal liquor selling. Only one witness, Charles Goller, testified. He said he purchased two cases of liquor from Rothman in 1927 in a restaurant on Graeme street which the defendant then conducted.

No whisky was produced in evidence and defendant did not testify. Judge John H. McCann, of Cambria county, trial judge, held that the evidence was meager and his charge virtually constituted binding instructions for acquittal. The jury divided the costs between the defendant and prosecutor.

Previously only one case in the probe group had been disposed of, that of George Burnside, listed for trial Tuesday, the first day of trials of the cases. He changed his plea to guilty and was fined $10 and costs and paroled for one year by Judge Drew. Other cases listed for trial during the week were postponed or pleas were changed to guilty, to be disposed of today.

SOUTH PRESSES CABINET DRIVE

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 26.—The drive of the new Republican South for a place in the Hoover cabinet is daily assuming larger proportions.

While the President-elect pursues the sail fish and tarpon in Florida's celebrated keys, there is gathering on Miami Beach a formidable array of Southern Republicans awaiting his return. Their numbers increase daily—in proportion to their determination that cabinet recognition must be given the fact that four states of the erstwhile solid South became converted to Republicanism last November.

The spearhead of this drive is Stuart W. Cramer, wealthy North Carolina manufacturer, and the purpose of it is to make him secretary of the Navy. He has the backing of most of the new Republican leaders of the South, who were active in the Hoover campaign.

For Cramer to become secretary of the Navy, however, presupposes the elimination of the present head of the Navy, Curtis D. Wilbur, who came into the Coolidge cabinet largely upon the recommendation of Mr. Hoover himself.

Billion Dollar Auto Trust Takes Form

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The New York World says today that announcement will be made in a few days of the formation of the biggest investment trust in the world, capitalized at between $500,000,000 and $700,000,000, to specialize in automotive stocks. Arthur W. Cutten, stock operator; Fred F. Fisher, vice president of the General Motors Corporation, and Walter P. Chrysler, have combined to form the new trust, the World says. Formation of the new trust gives color to reports last November of plans of Cutten and the Fisher Brothers to form a "Billion dollar circular trust," embracing all branches of the automotive industry, the paper states. The new automotive trust would hold stocks of virtually every sound automobile company and it would thus be possible for the investor to back the whole industry, thus stabilizing his investments.

The couple had left their two children, Nita, 12, and Harry, Jr., 3, with grandparents, and had driven to Pittsburgh to attend the theater. Firemen from Rochester and Rochester Township fought the blaze, which is blamed on an overheated furnace. Mr. Carcase is a contractor.

Val Breitenbaugh won the contest with a score of 10 demerits. C. W. Ward was the runner-up with 12 demerits. W. P. Perry, president of the club, kept score.

Other members who made a good showing were E. R. Kreger and L. C. Lyon. Casting was done with six-foot tournament rods and required exceptional skill and accuracy.

1930 AUTO TAGS TO BE SMALL

HARRISBURG, Jan. 26.—Pennsylvania's automobile license tags, starting in 1930, will be materially different in design, it became known today. Orders have been placed by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, department of highways, for the manufacture of approximately 1,830,000 sets of plates.

The tags will be a combination of letters and numerals but much unlike those in use at present. No tag under the new scheme will contain more than five units, whereas thousands of license plates in use now contain six-unit combinations of numerals and letters.

$75,000 SAVING

Economies in mailing costs, lower freight charges and the need for less steel will result in savings of approximately $75,000 annually, it is estimated.

The first 99,999 sets of license plates will be the same under the new system, as at present. After that number has been reached combinations of letters and numerals will be used. License plates reading like "1 A 111," "22 B 22, "333 C 3" or "4444 D," will be common sights on the highways of the state after next year.

It will be difficult for the layman to determine the total number of license tags issued under the new system. At present it is easy to figue that tag "A1" represents 1,000,001 or "C 50,000" means 1,250,000 passenger cars have been licensed by the department.

COLOR SCHEME KEPT

The color combination scheme will be retained, officials say. In 1930 the tags will have a gold back ground with blue letters and numerals.

Assignment of small license tags in the future will be no easy task for department officials. During the last few years the requests for low license numbers have reached such proportions that thousands of tags are reserved annually. Many of them will be eliminated from consideration under the change in the system.

TANGLE GROWS IN WOOD CASE

DETROIT, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Kaleidoscopic development in the maze of accusations and counter charges with which Mr. and Mrs. Ralph A. Wood have assailed each other for more than two weeks brought even law enforcement authorities today to disagreement as to which of the tales they offer is true.

Wood and Holt were arrested here and arraigned in Centerville, Mich., yesterday after police were informed by Mrs. Wood, wealthy in her own right, that she suspected her husband of complicity in the $75,000 holdup of the Sturgis, Mich., National bank, December 17. A clerk and customer of the bank had identified Holt and Wood positively. They were held in default of $50,000 bond. They will be examined February 5.

Both denied any part in the holdup and their stories apparently were confirmed by James E. Chenot, prosecutor of Wayne county, in which Detroit and Wyandotte are located.

Chenot announced that heads of three departments in a large store here said Wood was in the store at the time the bank robbery took place at Sturgis and said they indorsed checks with which he paid for purchases.

Records of the Cadillac Motor Company showed Holt punched his time card at the regular hours that day and employes in the office in which he worked said he was present throughout the day.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The 1929 Wampas Frolic and ball, at which this year's 13 "baby stars" of fildom were to make their public debut, has been called off by the sponsoring organization. TRAFFIC LIGHTS NUISANCE, UNIVERSITY SURVEY HOLDS

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The impatient motorist has long felt that the stop-and-go traffic lights were a positive nuisance, and today he had corroborative statements from two University of Illinois professors.

Prof. C. C. Wiley and Prof. J. S. Crandell told the Illinois Society of Engineers that the green and red lights, the no-left-turn rule and other traffic regulations were unnecessary and ineffectual.

Twenty per cent of traffic has been forced to make unnecessary stops because of the lights, they said.

The signals were of actual value during only one or two hours of each day, and a handicap the rest of the time, they said.

BRADDOCK FETE PLANS LAID

Tentative plans for a reception by Braddock citizenry for Fonce Kellams, a Braddock boy and hero in the rescue of 32 men from the Italian freighter Florida off the Virginia capes Wednesday, were going ahead today.

The matter, it was said, will be laid before the Chamber of Commerce, American Legion and other civic groups, who will ask co-operation of the borough council through Burgess W. L. Callahan.

Joseph R. Shermer, secretary of the council, who yesterday was quoted as announcing council would sponsor the project, today corrected the report, announcing at the same time, however, that the affair probably would be laid before council at its next meeting with a request for co-operation.

ACCUSED J. P. OUT ON BAIL

Having spent last night in the county jail, Justice of the Peace P. J. Burke, of Library, and his constable, Frank Kossen, were released on $1,000 bail each today. They were arrested following an alleged attempt last night to "shake down" Alex Szalkay, of 5521 Second avenue.

The justice and his constable were arrested on the accusation that they had accepted $500 for quashing a charge of liquor law violation preferred against Szalkay, a Hazelwood transfer man. County detectives who were waiting near the justice's office, rushed in upon a given signal, after Szalkay is alleged to have turned over the money.

Justice Burke denied accepting the money and said he had just finished holding Szalkay for court in $1,000 bail. The $500 payment was found on the squire's desk, detectives say.

JAWORSKI NOTE THANKS GUARD

CLEVELAND, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—A letter, written by Paul Jaworski, notorious bandit and killer, to Deputy Sheriff Edward Lavelle, of Cleveland, an hour before Jaworski died in the electric chair at Rockview Prison, Pa., has come to light here. It read.

"Dear Pal Eddie:

"I have one hour's time before I die so I am dropping you a line to let you know how it feels going to your own funeral. Well, Eddie, all I can say that I feel the same as a cow going to a slaughter house. You know how that feels—no feeling at all.

"It may be on account of my condition, for I am in the very same condition as I left your jail in. All I can say about myself I wrote to you before, but I did not get any answer to it so I did not write any more. Well, Eddie, it looks to me like we can't go on that drunk to Canada after all. Give my best to all the boys. I will think of them when I am on that throne of King Doom.

"Maybe you have forgotten me by now, but I can't forget my pal that fed me on candy and peanuts while guarding me. Those were the good old days—No, Eddie?"

ALMA RUBENS IN FIGHT, ILL

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Alma Rubens, screen actress, was receiving treatment in a sanitarium near Alhambra, Cal., today after having attempted to escape a physician and his assistant by dashing through the crowds along Hollywood boulevard and later stabbing the assistant with a paper knife.

Miss Rubens, the wife of Ricardo Cortez, motion picture star, was reported to be in a serious condition and suffering from a complete nervous breakdown.

In a report to the police yesterday, Dr. E. W. Meyer, the physician, said he and the assistant, H. Barnett, had called at Miss Ruben's home to take her to the sanitarium and that as the three of them were getting into his automobile, the actress turned and bolted down the main business thoroughfare of Hollywood.

Mrs. A. Driscoll, who said she was Miss Rubens' aunt, stated that her niece's condition resulted from overwork in completing a picture.

Miss Rubens is scheduled to appear in court February 5 on a charge of disturbing the peace at her apartment on a complaint issued by the apartment house manager, Mrs. Sarah Uhl, charging that the actress staged a "wild party."

An international search, centering in Europe, has been under way for Ringer for weeks. Berlin police identified him as the man who passed to Friedrich Ryber, of Vienna, bonds stolen from the American ship. Bonds formed the bulk of the loot, estimated at from $112,000 to $500,000.

BIG MUSICAL PLAYS AMONG PRODUCTIONS LISTED FOR NEW AMUSEMENT WEEK

FLORENZ ZIEGFELD recently promised William Anthony McGuire, author of the musical version of "The Musketeers," coming to the Nixon next week, a Minerva automobile fully equipped, if he delivered the books of "Whoopee," "East Is West," "Nell Gwynne" and "Joan of Arc" on scheduled time. The author made good in the case of "Whoopee" and has put the finishing touches on "East Is West," which is to be the next big Ziegfeld musical. He figures he is sure to win the car.

If you missed seeing Ed Wynn in George White's "Manhattan Mary" last season prior to his Broadway run you have the opportunity to see him when he plays his return engagement in the Alvin Monday night and all next week. Wynn is coming back to Pittsburgh from a run of five months in Chicago, and is stopping off here on his way to Philadelphia. The cast supporting Wynn numbers 100 singers, dancers, comedians and specialty artists, including Doree Leslie, Margaret Ball and Nick Long, Jr.

The Chevalier Brothers, who will be seen on the bill with Lita Grey Chaplin in the Davis next week, call themselves "Entertaining Entertainers.". They are gymnasts who are said to present a new and original type of athletics.

Pitt to Remain Dark for Week

THE Pitt is to be dark next week because of a readjustment of bookings for the Penn avenue house. Manager John B. Reynolds has been advised that within a few days a new schedule of plays will be announced, coming from engagements in New York and Chicago. During the dark week a thorough renovation will be made of the Pitt.

Next week in the Penn the screen feature will be "Alias Jimmy Valentine," film version of the play based on an O. Henry tale, with William Haines and Leila Hyams. "The Perfect Girl" is the tile of the stage presentation.

The New York Stock Exchange will be heard as well as seen in the Paramount sound feature, "The Wolf of Wall Street," starring George Bancroft, which is to be shown in the Stanley next week.

Romance outwits the gods of war in "True Heaven," featuring Lois Moran and George O'Brien, coming to the Aldine screen next week. It is based on the magazine story, "Judith."

German Film Of War Comes

GERMANY'S official World War pictures, "Behind the German Lines," released in this country by Paramount with sound, will be the attraction in the Grand next week. No fake shots are shown in this film.

"Apple Blossom Time" will be among the features of "Stolen Sweets," next week's burlesque in the Academy.

There is a "ghost room" in "The Haunted House," showing in the Enright, beginning today. It is the last word in weirdness. Chester Conklin and Flora Finch are in the cast.

H. B. Warner and Monte Blue make their first appearance together in the "talkies" in "Conquest," which begins its first showing in East Liberty in the Regent today.

A feature in the Harris vaudeville bill next week will be Marie Bergman and her Boy Friends. The Sheridan Square vaudeville will include Oscar Stange and his orchestra. Both theaters will show Reginald Denny and Alice Day on the screen in "Red Hot Speed."

Emil Jannings In "The Concert"

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 26.—Dr. Ludwig Berger is to direct Emil Jannings and Florence Vidor in "The Concert," according to present plans. It was at first understood that this picture would be directed by Ernst Lubitsch, but it appears that previous engagements will keep him occupied for some time to come. There are two important roles yet to be cast for this film, which will be an adaptation of the play in which the late Leo Ditrichstein scored a success.

Late Gifts May Put 'Y' Drive Over Top

Although they are more than $5,000 short in their annual budget appeal and the drive has formally closed, team workers for the Young Women's Christian Association believe the deficit will be made up by late contributions. A total of $129,-707.64 has been pledged according to reports submitted at the closing meeting last night at the International Institute, 3525 Forbes street. The amount desired was $135,000.

Dr. Heinroth At Organ Tonight

Beethoven compositions will be played exclusively by Dr. Charles Heinroth in his organ recital in Carnegie Music Hall at 8:15 o'clock tonight. The program follows: Overture to "Coriolanus," Adagio Cantabile from Sonata Pathetique, Marcia a la Turca, two movements from "Eroica" symphony, Tempo di Menuetto from "Septet," Adagio Molto e Cantabile from "Ninth Symphony," finale from Fifth Symphony.

The Sunday afternoon program at 4 o'clock will include overture to "Zampa," Herold; Andante Cantabile from Fourth Symphony, Widor; two dances from "Feramors," Rubinstein; Peer Gynt Suite No. 2, The Abduction, Ingrid's Lament, Arabian Dance, Peer Gynt's Return, Solfejg's Song, Greig; preludio, first movement of Sonata in E Flat Minor, No. 6, Rheinberger; Canzona in F Minor, King-Hall; Gavotte in D Minor, Silas; Polonaise in A Major, Chopin.

COURT LAYOUT SHIFT URGED

District courts scattered throughout Allegheny county, are proposed by Attorney Frank F. Canutt, member of the Oakmont Chamber of Commerce committee, which offers the idea as a suggestion for incorporation in the proposed Metropolitan Charter for Greater Pittsburgh as a means of eliminating the present congested condition of court dockets.

Canuti's plan divides the county into the following districts with courts for each: Central district in the present courthouse; McKeesport, Coraopolis, Tarentum and Wilkinsburg. The plan provides that a judge be appointed by the presiding judge. The amendment would give the same court jurisdiction over all criminal cases where the penalty provided would not exceed six months or $500 fine.

Westinghouse Vets Hold Dinner Tonight

A. W. Robertson, newly elected chairman of the board of directors of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company will be the principal speaker at the sixteenth annual banquet of the Westinghouse Veteran Employes' Association tonight in Syria Mosque. Merrick, vice president of the Westinghouse company, and E. J. Cattell, chief statistician for the city of Philadelphia. C. B. Auel will be toastmaster.

Dr. J. A. Knox Heads Waynesburg Board

WAYNESBURG, Jan. 26.—At a meeting of the Waynesburg College board of trustees, Dr. James A. Knox was elected president of the board, to succeed the late Judge J. Warren Ray.

"The Rescue" Fifth Conrad Story On Screen

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 26.—"The Rescue," a film version of the Joseph Conrad novel with Ronald Colman in the character of "King Tom" Lingard, has been completed by Herbert Brenen, who also directed Mr. Colman in "Beau Geste."

Lily Damita, French actress imported by Producer Samuel Goldwyn from Europe, makes her American screen debut in this production in the role of Mrs. Edith Travers.

One member of the cast, Duke Kahanamoku, the swimming champion, has been seen in another film version of a Conrad novel. In "The Rescue" he appears as Jaffir. In "Lord Jim" he portrayed Tamb Itam.

At least five Joseph Conrad novels have been filmed by American producers. They are "The Rescut," "Victory," "Lord Jim," "Nostromo" and "Romance." The first three came to the screen with their original titles. "Nostromo" was offered in films as "The Silver Treasure" and "Romance" as "The Road to Romance."

MOVIE STARS :-: AT HOME :-: AND ON THE GO

'Lili Damita, French film star, who is under contract to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, is in New York to appear in person in the Rialto Theater.

And here we have Hollywood home life as typified by the Gleason family. The father and mother—James Gleason and Lucile Webster Gleason—have deserted the spoken stage for picture. And their 20-year-old son, Russell, also is making good in screen dramas.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

BETTY FINDS A WAY

By ELEANOR WILMOT

BETTY had led a sort of a butterfly existence to date. Old Dr. Carter had adored his charming daughter, while her invalid mother had been content to let Betty have pretty much her own way.

But Dr. Carter's death, her brother Bobby's accident on the football field and the loss of their home and fortune had entirely changed matters.

For the first time in her life Betty faced the big and serious problem of ways and means.

The Carters had moved into a small, somewhat tumble-down cottage on the edge of the town. It was all they could afford. If ever there was a time in Betty's life that she had to keep herself in hand, it was now. She couldn't leave Bobby and she didn't have the money to send her mother away. But Betty, being Betty, wrote to the head of the big sanitarium and promised to pay before the season was over if he would take her mother at once and give her every attention.

She did a lot of thinking and when Betty thought—it always counted. To be sure, Rollin Fairbanks would have married her on the spot and been delighted to do it, but Betty was too proud to ask him to support her family and a bit too independent to take Rollin merely as a meal ticket.

So she went to work on her own account. Fortunately there was a weather-beaten one-story barn right near the road. She planted wild cucumber at the ends knowing that would grow quickly, and she had a couple of loads of fine, crushed stone placed in front of the barn so that cars could drive right to the door. Then broken windows were repaired and gay cretonne curtains hung, and some bright flowers planted about the edge of the building. The floor inside was fairly good and Betty had it covered with heavy building paper and painted a light gray.

Next she scurried around through the surrounding country in old Uncle Jake's flivver—her father had saved Uncle Jake's life once—and between them they picked up a lot of antiques and old glass and rugs and brass and jewelry and quilts which people wanted to turn in.

Betty didn't have money to buy them so she agreed to sell them on commission. Everybody was glad to trust Doctor Carter's daughter for the whole country-side had loved him. The antiques made the place wonderfully attractive and interesting. So Betty only had to buy a few cheap pine tables and chairs These she finished in quick drying light green enamel. Glass icicles (Christmas tree ornaments) hung from the rafters to make it cool looking. A couple of ancient horse stalls thoroughly scrubbed were used for private boths, with rose-shaded candles for center pieces.

By this time, she had made arrangements to buy Larrabee's Quality Ice Cream, and they were willing to put in a couple of cabinets and to keep them packed for her, if she became a regular customer. Then Betty herself, painted two big road signs (old barn doors)—the same to be placed a quarter of a mile distant in either direction to warn people to be on the lookout for "THE MAGIC ICE CREAM GARDEN." Next on cutout wall board she painted a quaint, little old lady, corkscrew curls and all, smiling invitingly and holding aloft the announcement "ANTIQUES." This was placed directly in front of her place of business.

Patrons came in with a rush from the first. Curiosity brought them and delight brought them back again. The first day's business made her gasp with amazement. Cakes, salads, sandwiches, ice cream melted like dew before the summer sun. And the way her antiques were snapped up made her wonder how long her stock would last.

In a week she had struck her stride, hired two helpers, and—"The Magic Ice Cream Trio" promptly christened "Strawberry," "Vanilla" and "Chocolate." They dressed the parts. Chocolate was a talented and pretty colored girl.

Her mother was mending, Bobby was almost well again, and she and the "Magic Garden Orchestra" had had a wonderful offer to go south for the winter under contract with a famous tea room at a fashionable winter resort! The musicians danced a jig of joy on their own account, for dancing was by no means unknown in the Magic Garden.

"It was a venture," she admitted to Rollin Fairbanks—"but, 'nothing venture nothing win'."

"Say, sweetheart, we'll go south, but it will be on our honeymoon."

And Betty didn't contradict him!

LYA DE PUTTI LEARNS TO FLY WHILE AWAITING BOAT TIME FOR ENGLAND

By DOROTHY HERZOG.

(Copyright, 1929, Premier Syndicate.)

THE latest flicker recruit to aviation is Lya De Putti, the fraulein who came to Uncle Sam's territory some years ago to emote celluloidly. Lya has been speeding herself to Glendale every day for several weeks and taking to the clouds with an instructor. She'll have her pilot's license very shortly now. Lya is about to begin a long trek to England, where she is to make a picture. She says she intends purchasing a small "ship" there and mixing atmosphere with the kleigs.

Lya De Putti.

Of course there's nothing new in remarking that Ruth Roland and Ben Bard will be hitched (poor grammar for married) on Valentine Day, February 14. But I don't recollect any comments on Billie Dove and Pauline Starke being Ruth's maids of honor. Um, and the ceremony is to take place at the Beverly Hills Hotel. Send all wires collect. It helps the income tax.

Doris in Film With Husband

SCREEN SCRIBS: JOAN CRAWFORD terribly pleased because ROD LaROCQUE and EDDIE NUGENT taught her to play Russian bank. 'Tis a beastly two-handed card game guaranteed to make friends enemies. . . . DORIS KENYON getting fitted for dresses. Um, she's gonna heroine for husband, MILTON SILLS, in his next cinema, title unknown. . . . LUPE VELEZ all excited telling the world that the mama eagle she owns will soon present papa eagle with an eaglet or two. . . . JIMMY HALL not wanting to put camphor balls in his new raccoon coat for fear folks would think he had had it in hock!! . . . And—that's all.

Dance Contest Attracts Stars

OCEAN PARK is one of three local amusement dens. The custodians of the park occasionally stage freak attractions to draw a crowd. Recently it was a sitting contest. Three men and one woman entered. The rules stipulated they sit for 48 hours. They could shift positions, but sleeping was out. During the 48 hours they could stand up 10 minutes or do what they pleased. For this astonishing exhibition, the winner received $25.

The present contest features marathon dancing. Four couples have survived a grind of 530 hours! The couple that doesn't collapse from sheer exhaustion will receive $1,000 each. A whole gang of flicker-ites have slummed to Ocean Park, encouraging the dancers and offering purses for peppy exhibition dancing. Norma Shearer and Irving Thalberg spread the marathon story up and down Santa Monica's ocean road, and as a result Bebe Daniels, Ben Lyon, Billie Dove, Irvin Willat, Gwen Lee, Tom Mix and umpty ump others hurried over for a "kick." And got it. . . .

New Fashion Expert Here

INTRODUCING, please, the new fashion conductor of this department: Howard Greer. Howard started his stylish career with Lucille at the time she reigned supreme. He has also been associated with Paul Poiret; costumed sundry plays, directed the fashion destinies of Famous Players, and now heads a freelance shop in the colony, frocking the limelighters in the up-to-date. Howard's debut yarn follows herewith:

For spring and summer there is nothing sensationally new—printed crepes and printed chiffons—but there are larger patterns and gayer colors than we had last year. Norma Talmadge has chosen two afternoon dresses of printed chiffon, one in blurred grays and the other in orange and scarlet leaves. Both frocks are made with the two-tiered circular skirt which continues the mode of the moment.

John T. Ford Death Ends Theater Line

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—John T. Ford, member of a famous theatrical family, whose father built Ford's Theater in Washington, where President Abraham Lincoln was assassinated, died at the home of his son here yesterday. He was 65.

With his death the active interest of the Ford family in theatricals has come to an end. The sons of Mrs. Ford have chosen other careers.

Man Drives Family Out and Ends Life

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 26.—After he had driven out members of his family, Frank Sopcayk, 45, committed suicide by hanging himself in the cellar of his home.

Andres Segovia

Morris Kaufmann Memorial Auditorium, Y. M. & W. H. A., at 8:15 P. M., Jan. 29

After studying composition and singing at several Spanish conservatories, Andres Segovia turned from their severe traditions to the guitar. The flaming richness of his music soon attracted the leading Spanish composers, who prepared special pieces for him.

To hear Segovia is to hear old Spain—poured into the sparkling mold of music . . . the romance of silver nights in Seville . . . the swift, contagious moods of gypsy fandangos . . . the plaintive strains of the mountain-folk. Hear him at the concert. Then have your nearest Victor dealer play you "Theme Varié" (6766) on the Orthophonic Victrola. Both are Segovia!

HOME FURNISHERS AND INTERIOR DECORATORS

WHERE DID THEY EVER GET THAT STUFF?

Watching a moving truck unload its contents all too frequently reveals the poor taste and apparent indifference to progress, with regard to home furnishing, still existing among people of whom we have reason to expect better.

Once limited means might have been accepted as an excuse for this kind of home furnishings, but today, with good furniture available to every one, and with the advice and assistance of experienced interior decorators to be had for the asking, this explanation no longer holds.

Good taste is not a matter of pocketbook, but of choosing the right store and availing one's self of the stocks, suggestions and actual guidance which such a store puts at one's disposal.

The February FURNITURE SALE Proves This

It proves that we are in a new era of home furnishing, characterized by modern lines and treatments which conform with the new type of small home and present-day activities.

It proves that tasteful furniture of the dependable quality and modern design need not be expensive.

It proves that February furniture prices are lower than any other time in the season.

It proves that rooms of all sizes and shapes (even old-fashioned houses) may be modernized and made inviting and attractive. This is demonstrated in 12 model rooms prepared by our decorating studios for the purpose.

It proves that the will to improve and refurnish our homes, rather than any large sum of money, is the thing that is needed, to have new furniture. The February Sale prices and our convenient payment plan, furnish the way!

Advance Inspection Now

The whole big story—the fresh, new stocks, the special prices, the model rooms, and February Sale features—is now open to the public to read for itself on our furniture floor. Come and see how interesting the new furniture is. Come and see how moderate the sale prices are. Come and see the suggestions for achieving new and striking effects in arrangements and decorations. Monday and the remaining days of January are given you for this purpose.

Selections may be made today or Monday, but no goods will be charged or delivered until February 1st.

This Is the Year to Make Home Improvements!

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Little Season Taking Firm Hold on Our Society Group

THIS "little season" idea is taking such a firm hold on the imaginations of our society group that it would be rather interesting to try to fathom the reason for its popularity. Up until four or five years ago, the June debuts were few and far between, and about the only social event that divided honors with the host of weddings during that month was the Skin and Cancer Foundation's annual dance.

The enthusiasm for June coming-out parties seems to be confined rather closely to Sewickley valleyites. Jane Edson and Virginia Willock, you know, were the girls who came out last June, and so far the only dates taken in that month are for Sewickley debuts—the two Rose girls, Margaret and Anne, and Katharine Collin. Certainly the idea is a good one for the valley. Can you imagine a more exquisite setting for a debut than the big gardens of the Sewickley and Sewickley Heights homes? Perhaps that is one of the answers to the question.

Whatever the reason, we seem to be heading for an interesting couple of months in the late spring. We will miss the Skin and Cancer Foundation's dance, always one of the most delightful of the benefit parties. The Foundation is a member of the Welfare Fund group, though, and so its party is eliminated from the social calendar.

There will be at least one big ball, however, during the "little season." This is being planned for Friday, May 24, by the social service department of the West Penn Hospital, and will be held in the new ballroom of the William Penn Hotel. Plans are rather nebulous, so far, I understand, so I will have to wait a while to give you more details.

ONE of the most important social events of the season-end was the dinner which Moorhead Holland gave on Wednesday evening in honor of the golden wedding anniversary of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. William J. Holland. There were about 130 guests at the dinner, among them Mrs. Harmar D. Denny, who had been a bridesmaid at the wedding 50 years ago; Mrs. William R. Thompson, whose husband was an usher at the ceremony, and Joseph Horne, whose father was an usher, too.

After dinner, there was a musical program. Elias Breeskin gave violin solos, and Romaine Smith Russell, soprano; Viola K. Byrgerson, contralto; Roy Strayer, tenor, and Cass Ward Whitney, baritone, sang, accompanied by Earl B. Collins, Earl Truxell and an orchestra directed by Victor Saudek. And while the guests were dining, there was music by a quartet of singers and banjo players from New York.

Dr. and Mrs. Holland were married in the First Presbyterian Church on January 23, 1879, and at that time the former was pastor of the Bellefield Presbyterian Church. Later Dr. Holland, who is a son of the late Rev. and Mrs. F. Raymond Holland, became chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh and director of the Carnegie Museum. Mrs. Holland was Miss Caroline Moorhead, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Moorhead, before her marriage.

Mrs. Chalfant Heads County Federation

MRS. J. G. CHALFANT, of Wilkinsburg, was elected president of the Allegheny County Federation of Women's Clubs when the organization met yesterday in the Congress of Clubs. Mrs. J. W. Byers, of Coraopolis, was chosen vice president and Mrs. Adam Daum was re-elected treasurer. Thirty-three of the 64 clubs in the federation was represented by the 140 women who attended the all-day conference, which was presided over by the retiring president, Mrs. R. B. Perry.

A talk on smoke abatement by Dr. G. St. J. Perrott, of the Bureau of Mines, which is co-operating with the Smoke Abatement League, was the high light of the morning session. Engineers are powerless without the co-operation of the householders, Dr. Perrott told the women, remarking that a smoking chimney is as great an error as a soiled tablecloth. He advised the use of smokeless fuel, coke or low volatile coal, or at least that the householder fire his furnace in the correct way, which the speaker went on to describe.

Miss Helen Crawley reported the Pittsburgh Girls' Conference and Mrs. R. W. Johnston told of the recent Washington Cause and Cure of War Conference. In the afternoon there were vocal solos by Mrs. Cuba Fitz-Heilman, who made a distinctly favorable impression on this, her first appearance before Pittsburgh club women.

Dr. Nathan Miller, of Carnegie Institute of Technology, was the afternoon speaker. With "The Beginnings of Education" as his subject, Dr. Miller told of the purpose of education, methods of primitive education and the similarity between those and present-day methods. The primitive strain is repressive; the purpose of education should be to draw out the latent ability and develop whatever personality and originality a child has, Dr. Miller said.

MRS. LOWELL FLETCHER HOBART, of Cincinnati, candidate for president general in the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution; Miss Margaret Barnett, candidate for corresponding secretary general, and Mrs. N. McEldowney gave a luncheon at the Twentieth Century Club for the visitors and their respective hostesses and last night they were feted at a beautifully appointed dinner given by the board of the Fort Pitt Society and the executive board of the Pittsburgh Chapter, at the Hotel Schenley. Each honor guest spoke at the chapter's afternoon meeting in the hotel and later received informally. Henry Harris, gifted young Pittsburgh pianist, who is going abroad to study, gave a recital of unusual beauty.

KAISER, 70, HOPES WORLD WILL HOLD HIM INNOCENT

DOORN, Holland, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Members of European families still on friendly terms with former Kaiser Wilhelm were arriving today to help him celebrate the seventieth anniversary of his birth tomorrow in as grand a style as exile will permit.

Because of a law of the Hohenzollern house, Wilhelm may not pose for photographers. Baron Ulrich Von Sell, friend and co-worker of the former Kaiser, informed everyone asking for permission to take pictures.

Speaking through Baron Von Sell, the former Kaiser gave an interview to the chief of the Berlin bureau of the Associated Press. A foreword dictated and signed by the former Kaiser said:

DECRIES WAR BLAME

"To promote the welfare of the German people and to preserve the peace in the world—this has ever been the supreme law governing my actions. In the firm faith in God, the All-Just, I therefore hope to live to see the day that shall free us Germans from the burden of the false accusation of having unleashed the greatest of all wars."

The baron represented Wilhelm as believing that, according to the program of President Wilson, the Central Powers were not to pay any reparations. Later the Treaty of Versailles decreed that Germany was to be held liable for all the Allies' costs incurred in the war.

"The basis of this action," said the baron, "was furnished by the thesis of Germany's guilt for the war—an unscrupulously invented lie.

HOPES OPINION WILL CHANGE

"His Majesty expects—and it would seem not without foundation—that voices as important as these will in the course of time bring about a change of world opinion in favor of Germany and will finally result in cancelling further payments of tribute on the part of Germany."

Baron Von Sell praised the well-being of the German Empire under Wilhelm, citing prosperity, the development of science, the creation of a fleet and welfare legislation. The baron added:

"These are achievements for the welfare of his country for which history will some day give the Kaiser full credit."

SERVICE BEGUN BY NEW BARGE LINE HERE

The steamer Sam Craig, the first unit of the Pittsburgh barge line, goes into operation today when it makes its first trip in Pittsburgh and Cincinnati trade, marking the opening of a new line of boats and barges carrying local products to Southern ports.

The boat, built at Mays Landing, is under the command of Capt. James P. Kerr, pioneer pilot of local rivers.

The boat is taking the first all-steel tow from the plant of the Weirton Steel Company, Weirton, W. Va., to Cincinnati. The Sam Craig is the first of three boats to be operated by the line and is considered the most modern boat on local rivers.

The barge line was constructed at a cost of more than $2,500,000. It operates a fleet of six cargo box barges, 21 open steel barges and the three steamers.

The other steamers, C. W. Talbot and J. D. Ayres, are to be ready next month.

Progress of Home Reported Lagging

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The home is pictured as lagging far behind the progress in every other field of American life in a report of a preliminary survey recently conducted by the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. John D. Sherman, former president of the organization, who directed the survey, said in a statement today that towns with populations as high as 25,000 had been found without public water or sewage systems; that nearly one-fifth of the city homes were without kitchen sinks and bathtubs.

WOMEN SEEK TEMPERANCE PLAN

MANY ENTERED IN HEARST CONTEST

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Woman's pronounced and enthusiastic interest in the William Randolph Hearst offer of a $25,000 prize for the best practicable and legally workable temperance plan as a substitute for prohibition is shown by the thousands of communications entered in the Hearst newspapers' contest.

Fully 35 per cent of the entrants in the competition to date are women—school teachers, office workers, housewives, those interested in church and social work or engaged in professional life. In their letters they show how close the prohibition problem comes to their daily lives.

They express their hope and demand that present conditions, having such an evil effect, as they have noted, upon the youth of the land, may be brought to an end.

Hundreds continue to write daily for a complete statement concerning the purpose of the contest and the rules governing it. The rules will be sent by mail on request and are being reprinted in the Hearst papers. Such a flood of communications as daily reaches the committee headquarters in New York has seldom if ever been noted in any previous prize contest held in this country.

Following are new expressions of opinion on the contest from persons of note:

Clarence J. McLeod

Representative Clarence J. McLeod, member of Congress from Michigan:

"William Randolph Hearst's offer of $25,000 for the best plan for true temperance is the greatest measure of the decade for the improvement of American decency and the protection of American youth.

"Mr. Hearst emphasizes true temperance. He means moderation, but in what degree? The Hearst prize offer will make every person think in such fundamentals. The prize is within reach of either the highly educated or those with moderate educations; those who profess to be either wets or drys, rich or poor, the only proviso being that they think clearly and logically to some conclusion that will benefit every citizen of our country.

"When one man can start an entire nation to thinking on one subject he has done a wonderful bit of work. W. C. Durant's $25,000 prize did not require contestants to deal in the fundamentals of the American psychology. It required only that a few set facts be combined into a formula.

"Recently there was elected to Congress a sincere dry who used 'Drier than Volstead' as a campaign slogan. He was sincere in his convictions. But that congressman's son was arrested and convicted of violation of the prohibition law. Certainly the congressman, sincere as he may be, cannot call his dry views true temperance when his son drinks so much he is haled into court.

"No one wants to see the return of the open saloon, but it is necessary to eliminate a worse evil bred under prohibition, the blind pig, or speakeasy, where a 15-year-old girl is as welcome a patron as a man of 50. It is this phase of prohibition which is lowering American decency. I am in favor of American decency."

Malcolm Nichols

Malcolm Nichols, Mayor of Boston:

A Correction

In two editions of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, through an error, it was announced the time limit for submission of temperance plans in the $25,000 Hearst Offer Contest was August 30 next. The correct date of closing is April 30, 1929.

"Mr. Hearst again becomes a leader in a matter of vital interest to the people by his offer of a $25,000 prize for a true temperance plan.

"Just as he performed a wonderful public service in his succesful fight through his newspapers for legislation enabling the creation of Boulder Dam in Colorado, so will he be sure to bring about beneficial results stimulating the citizens to give serious study to the question of prohibition, or more properly temperance."

The Rev. J. R. Gee

The Rev. John R. Gee, pastor of the Danforth Congregational Church, Syracuse, and formerly president of the Syracuse Ministers' Association:

"I personally believe that if any plan can be produced by Mr. Hearst or by any group of men to bring about a better situation than the one now prevailing in America, such a plan would be welcomed by countless millions of people who desire as earnestly as any other group to see America a sober nation.

"It may be that we have been unwilling to consider any plan or any method save that of our present one of dealing with the liquor evil. Millions of people are watching and helping in so far as they can what President-elect Hoover has called 'a noble experiment.' Prohibition is just that, but we must remember there are many just as devoted as we are to the purpose of making and keeping America a sober nation, who are not sure total prohibition is quite the way.

"So I would say let us have all the plans that human minds can produce, and let us with fine openmindedness and courage consider them. The only people we have to fear are the people who have no thought for the moral and spiritual wellbeing of the nation."

N. J. Steigleder

N. J. Steigleder, landowner, of Auburn, Wis.:

"Mr. Hearst's recent declaration against prohibition is proof that public opinion is coming to realize the functions of government cannot be extended to include the forcible regulation of habits and customs forming an integral part of the life of people.

"The sentiment against strong drink, with its consequences, was widespread in Europe long before America realized its baneful influence, and as an antidote the consumption of beer and wine was encouraged by reformers and economists.

"In America we had Sunday closing, and shortening of the hours of drinking places in towns and cities followed, and finally came prohibition. With efficient lubrication, prohibition went through Congress and the legislatures with a rush, without, however, changing the habits and customs of millions regarding their diet.

"We see Europe devoted to temperance, and drunkenness in America under prohibition. Europe is struggling upwards from the depths of poverty and near annihilation from the war. America is celebrating its advent at the top of prosperity by a variety of pleasures at home and abroad. It is a race between legal beer in Europe and illegal rum in America. Which will win?"

7 Rules of $25,000 Temperance Contest

The purpose of the contest is to obtain a practicable plan, as a substitute for prohibition, which will secure better actual temperance conditions, which will be more easily possible of enforcement by state and Federal authorities, which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service, and which will not so outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens.

The rules and conditions of the contest are simple and are as follows:

1—Every person is entitled to enter the contest, but no one person may submit more than one plan.

2—The practicable plan proposed as a substitute for prohibition must be set forth in an article containing not more than 1,000 words.

3—This contest will close on April 30, 1929, and no plan which has not been mailed and postmarked on or before that date will be considered.

4—The articles submitted in the contest will be judged by a committee of eminent Americans, the personnel of the committee to be announced at a later date.

5—The full prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the contestant submitting the best plan as a practical temperance substitute for prohibition.

6—If other plans not awarded the first prize shall still be considered worthy of some compensation by the committee, a second prize of $5,000 and other prizes of $1,000 each may be awarded.

7—Articles submitting a plan to be considered in this contest may be sent to the temperance contest committee, care of the editor of any one of the following Hearst newspapers: Albany Times-Union, Atlanta Georgian, Baltimore News, Boston Evening American, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, New York American, Omaha Bee-News, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Rochester Journal, San Antonio Light, San Francisco Examiner, Syracuse Journal, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Washington Herald, Wisconsin News (Milwaukee).

"NANCY DEANE" by ROY L. FOLEY

Nancy Tells Wescott About Her New Job, But He Disapproves of It

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Nancy Dean, golden-haired, dark-eyed, who has lived her 18 years with David and Margaret O'Day, foster parents, in Washington, learns she is the granddaughter of the wealthy and aristocratic Montgomery Deanes in Pittsburgh, who disinherited her father and do not even know of her existence. Through John Blair, an upstanding young man, she has learned to admire, she secures a letter to Howard Wescott, manager of the Wear Ever Mills in Pittsburgh. On the train she meets Ginger Varden, a style model who takes her to her boarding house and introduces her to her friends. One of these, Vic Flemming, makes love to her and asks her to marry him. She finally securs a job in the knitting mill where Wescott, attracted by her beauty, offers her a place in the office. She is naively delighted, but both Ginger and Vic characterize Wescott as a "big bum." That same evening while Vic, Jerry Durant, Ginger and Nancy are dining and dancing at the Golden Pheasant, Wescott comes in; Vic picks a quarrel and they have a rough and tumble fight and are arrested. The papers are full of the episode; Ginger hails it as good publicity and insists on getting Nancy a job at modeling with Ziegelbaum, her employer. Mrs. O'Day, in alarm at the paper's account of the fight, telephones to Nancy, who reassures her. When Wescott sees Nancy the next morning he acts as though nothing has happened, takes her to lunch to the country, shows jealousy of Vic Flemming and kisses Nancy. She laughs at him and he is greatly astonished. She feels drawn to Wescott and confides in him her story all except the name of her grandparents. He wonders who they can be, but she begs him not to try to discover. She wonders if she is in love with him, all the time recalling John Blair. Wescott takes her motoring and shows his fondness for her. She accepts a job from Ginger modeling for some evening style shows upstate, planning to ask Wescott to let her off early for a week. Her rehearsal in a debutante gown proves a great success with Ginger's employer.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVIII.

THAT night was the first that Nancy got a good, restful sleep since she had left her own little white and rather hard bed at home. Ginger seemed less restless that evening and said nothing about going anywhere. And neither Vic nor Jerry Durant showed up. They didn't even telephone.

Nancy didn't mention their names, half afraid if she did Ginger would suggest that they all go on another party. Nancy just didn't feel equal to a party that night. It would be heaven, she had thought at the showrooms, if she and Ginger could go straight home from the rehearsal and get into bed.

She anticipated a rather trying day tomorrow. She would have to tell Howard Wescott about her decision to help out in Ziegelbaum's style shows, and what was worse, she would have to face Harriet Crosby, and work with her the whole day.

The style rehearsal was over by 10. Fifteen minutes later the girls got out of a taxi in front of The Carmondy. Ginger paid for the taxi and she gave the driver a generous tip. Nancy marveled at the money Ginger always seemed to have. She thought of her own meager supply.

Once inside Ginger's room Nancy lost no time in slipping into bed. Ginger spread herself on her lounge, luxuriously, adjusted the light, lit a cigaret, and picked up a fashion magazine. She flipped a few pages, but her interest, evidently, wasn't there.

"Nancy," she said. "I've got some advice for you. You're a sweet kid, and as I've said before, I like you. Couldn't be jealous of you if I tried. But I'm askin' you just one thing—'Lay off Ziegelbaum!'"

Nancy had never seen Ginger so emphatic.

"You can play around with your young millionaires all you want to, if you just take my advice about them, and don't let it get into your head that one of 'em goin' to marry you, or anything, because they ain't. But leave Ziegg ie to me.

"Ziegg ie thinks he's my big papa. And I want him to go on thinkin' just that. I don't want any little yellow-headed up-state girl separatin' me from my source of clothes supply. See?

"Say, the way he lamped you tonight, I could see he had completely forgot his percentages an' that don't look so good to me. He thinks you're the sweetest story ever told.

"An' I'm proud of you myself, kiddo. The way you walked out in the blue thing he's calling The Debutante was just about as good a performance I've ever seen from a model lots more experienced in the strut and the society face than you are.

"I'm only warnin' you. Leave Ziegelbaum to me. I need him. An' I'll keep my nose out of your millionaire affair. I only hope Vic will, too.

"Lord, wouldn't Vic go wild if he knew you and Wescott was out nearly all afternoon, billy-cooin' up in The Chalet. I ain't tellin' him, understand. Ginger knows when to keep her mouth shut. Say, the thing I could spill about people in this town would rock the City Hall, as they say in the papers when there's a big political scandal. But I don't say 'em. Live and let live. That's my motto. And wear a big hat so you can keep a lot of stuff under it."

So this was what was on Ginger's mind. The thing that had kept her so quiet after the style show. She was a little afraid Ziegelbaum might switch his fawning to Nancy and that her easy life as a favorite model might be jeopardized.

"Why, Ginger!" was all Nancy could say.

All during Ginger's little speech Nancy kept saying, "Why, Ginger," but Ginger kept right on talking until she was through. Then she came over to the bed and kissed Nancy.

"Just to show you there's no hard feelings," she said.

"Ginger Varden, are you through?" Nancy managed to say at last. "If you are, please understand that Mr. Ziegelbaum is nothing to me. I never saw him until tonight, and I think he's terrible, impossible. He may be a good business man, but he's not my idea of an Adonis. I don't know what you mean by taking him from you. I only know that he's given me a chance to do some extra work with good pay, and that if it wasn't for you I wouldn't have got it. I'm thankful to you both, and that's all there is to it. I'm going to earn some money and send it to Mother O'Day as fast as I can. She can buy the coal this winter, anyhow.

"Another thing, about Vic being furious or going wild if he knew I went to lunch with Mr. Wescott. That's none of Vic Flemming's business and I'll tell him so, if he makes any objection. I'm not engaged to Vic Flemming, not by a long way."

All the time Nancy was talking Ginger was standing across the room, fascinated by her rapid flow of words.

"Lordy, what a declaration of independence that was," she exclaimed, bursting into a laugh. "All right, kid, I knew you were a good, straight-shootin' kid, and I'm sorry I had any doubts about you. Say, you're not really going to bed for sure, are you? Why, the night's young."

"It's just young enough to make me want to steal a few hours' sleep," Nancy answered. "I'm about exhausted and I've got a big day before me tomorrow. I've got to break the news of my new night job to Howard Wescott, you know."

"Say, there's nothin' to that," Ginger answered. "I'm beginning to think you can do anything you want with men without half tryin'. Maybe it's because you don't even try that they fall for you so hard. My Lord! kiddo, you've got 'it' and you don't even know it. That's the secret of that darn charm of yours. I'm tellin' you—you just don't know you got it."

Harriet Crosby's reception the next morning was just what Nancy expected. Refreshed after her night's sleep, she had risen early, singing with the joy of living while she made coffee in Ginger's percolator. She walked in the crisp air to work. Her cheeks were like rose petals when she opened the door of Howard Wescott's office just at 8:15. Coming to work at this hour was quite different from the hours of the factory girls, Nancy thought, thankfully.

"Good morning, Miss Crosby," she sang out.

Harriet Crosby was dusting her desk. She emitted a noise more like a grumble than anything, and went about her dusting without looking up. Nancy was embarrassed. She was too new in the office to know just what to do. Her work had not been laid out for her or she would have gone straight to it.

She tried again.

"Shall I continue with that filing I started yesterday?" Nancy asked.

"Better wait until Mr. Wescott comes in, he's the one who seems to know more about what you should and shouldn't do than I," Harriet said, crisply.

Nancy didn't know just what she meant by that remark. But walked over to the files and picked up a huge packet of papers and correspondence ready for classification. She was busy at work when Wescott came in about nine. He said "good morning, girls," cheerily and walked into his own private office without stopping to make other comment.

Five minutes later he rang for Miss Crosby and dictated letters for more than two hours. At 11:15 Harriet came out of the inner office, and a little while later Wescott rang again.

"Tell Miss O'Day I'd like to see her," he said when Harriet answered the summons.

"Miss O'Day, it's for you."

The iciness with which Harriet uttered the words should have frozen Nancy to her chair. But it didn't. She had too much of a sense of humor to be disturbed. It occurred to her how quickly girls can change when the man they care for expresses interest in another girl. Ginger and Harriet Crosby expressed the same thing, only differently, Ginger over Ziegelbaum when the latter smiled at Nancy, and Harriet over Howard Wescott. Of course Ginger wasn't infatuated with Ziegelbaum, but a girl needs clothes and Ziegelbaum was in the clothing business.

Howard Wescott jumped to his feet as soon as Nancy entered his office. He drew up a chair beside his desk and asked her to sit down.

"Whew! that's more work than I've got out in a week," he said, just as though he was talking to some friend instead of a new clerk in his office. He settled himself back as though he was going to relax and have a friendly chat.

"How do you like the work?" he asked.

He leaned over the glass topped desk toward Nancy, his hand on the glass, not four inches from her own pink fingers that she was pressing so hard on the edge of the desk.

Nancy wasn't so new to the ways and manners of men that she didn't know Wescott's question was just a means of starting conversation. He knew, and she knew, that she hadn't done enough work in his office so far to know whether she was going to like it or not.

She dropped her eyes before the steadiness of his, and in the polished surface of the glass before her she could see his reflection, clean-cut, handsome.

Could this man really be such a deceiver of women and such a profligate as Vic and Ginger intimated? True, they hadn't said anything directly against him, but from their inferences one gathered he was very wicked.

Nancy couldn't tell. She only knew that when she was near him she felt little thrills creeping up and down her back. She knew he could compel her to do anything if he'd try hard enough. She knew that she had never before felt this way in the presence of any man. She began to be afraid of her own feelings.

"Yes, Mr. Wescott, I do like it, what I've done."

He ignored the last half of her remark, leaned a little closer and said:

"Blair said you were going to take up some secretarial work in the evening, but I've got a plan. How would you like to take up your shorthand work in the afternoons? I think I can arrange to let you go at 3 o'clock three afternoons a week at least. That will be better than night work and you will progress much faster. It will be to my own advantage in this office to have you master that shorthand stuff as quickly as possible. How about it?"

Nancy couldn't believe that she was hearing. It seemed that this couldn't be she, that it must be another girl who was hearing these things. This might happen to a heroine in a story, but she hardly expected it to happen to her. In the last few days everyone seemed to be pushing her forward, offering her opportunities. She had anticipated such a different time. "That would be wonderful, Mr. Wescott," she found herself saying. The words didn't sound as though she were uttering them. It was as though she were a third party, someone detached, sitting across the room, listening to a conversation between these two people.

"Very well then, let's say you begin Monday."

Then Nancy remembered with a pang that Ziegelbaum's first style show opened at Oshkosh on Wednesday, that she had planned to tell Wescott of her opportunity to make some extra money quickly, and ask to be excused from work early on the nights of the shows. There were to be four shows, Wednesday night, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. She didn't know just what other plans had been made by Ziegelbaum. She knew the Saturday and Sunday shows would not interfere with her work because the office only worked a half day on Saturday.

What should she do? What should she say? Howard Wescott must have read in her face the conflict in her brain. He asked what the trouble was.

"No trouble at all," Nancy answered. She tried to shake off the concern that really was in her heart. "Only that I've had an offer to make a little extra money by doing some modeling work next Wednesday and Friday nights and I had planned to ask if you'd excuse me early on those days."

"Modeling!"

Wescott's face registered surprise.

"Are you a model? Do you pose, er— in the nude, and all that?" Nancy laughed at his expression.

"Oh, my, no. I mean to model clothes, the new fall frocks and coats. A girl I know who's a professional model told me about the style shows that Ziegelbaum's, Inc., is putting on in some towns north of here, and she wanted me to go as an extra model. You see, Mr. Wescott, I wouldn't ask but I need money very badly."

With a look of desperation she went on: "I was going to ask you if I might get away about three o'clock on Wednesday and Friday and maybe one day the week after. A friend of mine will drive me back and forth, and I won't be late for work in the morning after the shows."

Her earnest request and her promise not to be late made Howard Wescott laugh.

"You certainly have got grit" he said, "you look like an angel and you talk business like a Wall street broker."

He stood up, walked around the corner of the desk, and took hold of Nancy's arms.

"You're the funniest mixture of a vixen, an angel, a woman of the world, a baby and an imp that I've ever seen," he said. Nancy attempted to free herself.

"If you need money so desperately I'll give it to you, let the modeling go hang."

He stooped over and kissed her.

POOR LITTLE RICH GIRL

THE problems of the poor little rich girl are so much more difficult than those of the rich little poor girl that its' no wonder she always has such a worried expression. True, she has everything that money can buy. Her every desire is instantly gratified. Clothes she has, and jewels and motors and lovely horses and dogs and flowers—all the things that all girls love.

But—when it comes to love, ah, that's her problem! How can she know that all those who cluster around her begging for a smile and the word which will make them happy, are sincere? How can she know whether the love they offer is real or false? The poor girl never has this to wonder about, for she knows when a man says he loves her that it must be so; for she has nothing else. But the rich girl has to think of the dollars that surround her. Is it these they want, or is it truly herself?

How can she tell? Just when she thinks that at last she has found the real, true love, something happens—and it's all gone! But if she's a wise little girl, she'll watch her heart and listen for the small voice that will unerringly lead her to happiness. For love has a way of making himself known. How, that's hard to tell, for he never acts exactly the same way twice.

So don't despair, little rich girl, for Love awaits you as surely as it does your less fortunate sisters. Love is the ultimate lot for us all and you'll find your true love if you but heed Love's own true call.

A Continuation of Love's Embers

Finesse Required to Finish Shopping Tour

I DID not have to wait but the fraction of a minute for the answer to my mental query concerning Lillian's knowledge of her young daughter's subterfuge. And, indeed, it was absurd of me to have asked it, I told myself, when I knew so well the keenness of my old friend's perceptions. Her sense of justice is as clear as her powers of observations, and I was not surprised to hear her voice, brisk and incisive, in answer to Marion's assertion that she would not be able to finish her shopping trip in time to take the train back home.

"That will be very unfortunate, if true, Marion," she said, and there was that in her voice which reminded me of falling icicles. "For we are going to be at the Thirty-fourth street door at 4 o'clock, and if your suit and hat and shoes and gloves are not selected by then you will have to wear your last spring's outfit up to school. I have decided that we cannot spend any more time, for from the way things have gone this afternoon, you would be just as undecided if we spent a week here as an hour. I've never known you to be so uncertain before. I think you need to have your mother decide for you; don't you?"

Her voice had softened and there was a smile on her lips as she finished. That has been Lillian's way of disciplining her daughter since her infancy, a swift, effectual "smacking" mental or physical, and then an equally quick forgiveness and smile, making it easy for the child to capitulate.

Marion is naturally a most docile daughter and her love for her mother approaches idolatry. Also I guessed that her conscience was making itself heard. At any rate, she returned her mother's smile with a reluctant "I guess that's what I need," adding a comment, however, which I mentally echoed.

"But how we're ever going to do it all in an hour, I don't see."

"I do," her mother said briskly, taking out a pad and pencil—we were sitting in the shoe department while a somewhat exhausted saleswoman hovered near. "Tell me, of those suits we saw upstairs, which most nearly suited you?"

"That three-piece silk and wool in wood brown with the blue embroidery," Marion responded promptly.

"Are there any alterations to be made on it that we can't do at home?"

"No, it will just have to be shortened a bit."

"And that I prefer to have done under my own eyes," Lillian commented, with a grin twitching in the corners of her mouth. "All right, you go up to that department, slip that suit on once more to be sure it's the right size and order it sent out to the farm. Then come down to us at the millinery department. Mary will go with you, so if it's gone, she can race down to the millinery and give me an SOS. Here, give me your hat, you won't need it, and while you are gone, Auntie Madge and I will get out all the hats of your size that could possibly go with that suit. Wait a second!"

She turned to the shoe saleswoman. "Have you this young woman's size in shoes?"

"Yes, madam, I just measured her foot."

"Run along then, girls," and when they were out of hearing, she turned back to the clerk.

"We shall be back down here very shortly," she said. "Will you please have ready an assortment from which we can make a selection of brown pumps for street wear, black patent leather pumps, white satin evening slippers, and white buckskin sport shoes, all in this size? Will you keep your time clear for us as we are making a train?"

"I'll have everything ready for you," the girl promised and Lillian hurried me up to the millinery section which we had visited before. The saleswoman, who had borne the brunt of Marion's vacillation looked uncertainty at us, and then, summoned by Lillian's beckoning hand, came up to us.

"We've come back to buy, not to hen around," my friend told her with a smile, "and we have about 10 minutes to do it in. Will you please come with me and take over to the mirror the hats I point out to you, of this size?"—handing her the hat Marion had worn into the city.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

Seek the Woman

SEEK the mainspring of every man's success or failure—and you will find a woman!

* * *

Back of every man's achievement is the inspiration—or the instigation—of some woman; his wife, his mother, his sweetheart—or the other woman.

* * *

When a woman isn't the motive power behind a man's supreme effort, she is usually the desired object in front of it. And when she is neither of these, she is the torment or the tormentor that drives him to seek solace in hard work.

* * *

She may be the guiding star which he follows. Or she may be just a little stinging gnat that keeps him hustling. He may be striving to live up to her beautiful ideals, or merely struggling to satisfy her selfish whims and demands.

* * *

He may be animated by the passionate desire to become the strong, brilliant, successful being that some woman imagines him.

* * *

Or he may be merely actuated by the desire to win some spoiled and charming butterfly, in whose opinion he is just a blot upon the scenery, or one of the footlights in her solar system.

* * *

His latent powers, his dormant ability, his unappreciated talents and untapped resources may have been discovered by some devoted woman who loved and understood him.

* * *

Or they may have blossomed out of his loneliness with a wife who never loved or understood him.

* * *

Some men have their higher selves coaxed into being by a woman who goes before them holding a bunch of hay or an apple. And others are goaded into action by a woman who follows them with a poised whip and a ready spur.

* * *

Many a man has sought diversion in a fascinating career and turned to art or literature or money-making because his home life was so deadly dull that he had to find an outlet. And many a man has gotten chummy with fame or success because he couldn't get chummy with his wife.

* * *

If a man isn't trying to prove to some woman that he is the glorified being she thinks he is, he is nearly always busy trying to prove to himself that he is not the mere dumbbell she imagines he is.

* * *

Either way he is made—or unmade—by a woman. That is where Adam got the first masculine alibi—"Cherchez la femme!"

How to Keep Well

Remote Infections Often Responsible for Swellings

DR. COPELAND

AS we go through life we pick up one disease after another. If you are 30 or 40 years of age and have never been sick, you are lucky. If you are 50 or 60 and have escaped disease, it is little short of a miracle.

Of course a lot of the ailments we have are of little consequence. They may annoy us but really are not serious.

Swelling of the joints, or of a single joint, is a condition often met. Whether or not this is an important symptom depends on its cause.

What are the causes of swollen joints?

There are a number. The first that comes to my mind is an injury of some sort. An accidental blow upon the hand, the hip, the knee, or the elbow, may be followed by swelling.

Following the injury there is pain, perhaps pronounced pain. Pretty soon the joint is swollen and red.

With rest and simple treatment, the symptoms disappear. If they do not, more energetic treatment will be necessary.

It is not difficult to understand the nature of a swelling due to an injury. But it isn't so easy to figure out what is wrong when some underlying disease is responsible for the trouble. There are such diseases and it may be that their first sign is a swelling of one or more of the joints.

Among such diseases are tuberculosis, rheumatism, scurvy and pus formation in remote parts of the body. So far as rheumatism is concerned, we cannot disregard the probability that a localized infection somewhere is at the root of the difficulty.

Joint tuberculosis is entirely different from tuberculosis of the lungs, the usual form of the disease. It is not accompanied by the cough, pain in the chest and other familiar symptoms of "T. B.," as it is called by almost everybody.

Of course there may be some fever, loss of weight, paleness of the skin, the common signs of a mild form of tuberculosis. But inability to use the joint is a pretty good sign something has interfered with its function and that something may be tuberculosis.

Redness, swelling, heat and pain in one of the joints are the traditional symptoms of acute rheumatic infection. The chronic type is quite lacking in these pronounced disturbances. In this form there may be swelling and tenderness on handling, but no pain of any consequence, and no redness.

Bad teeth, pus-infected gums, a running ear, disease of the tonsils, of the intestinal tract or gall bladder, may be responsible for such cases. Swollen and distorted joints, for instance of the finger, may be traced to one or another of these local troubles.

It is important to take care of the swollen joint and attempt to keep it from growing worse. It is even more important to discover the seat of the original trouble. By getting rid of the remote cause the joint will get well and there will be no further trouble—trouble sure to result if there is neglect.

Horoscopes

Sunday, January 27

SUNDAY'S horoscope shows many advantages and marked expansion for the affairs of church as well as state. While benevolence, religion and virtue are under the benignant Jupiter, promoting these, the aspects also bring profit and satisfaction to other ambitions and ideals. Benefits may come through hidden sources or secret agreements.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of progress and advancements in many directions, with position and profit assured from those in power as well as through some secret sources or affiliations.

A child born on this day may have many excellent qualities and virtues, making for success, position and well-being in life.

Monday, January 28

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is not a fortuitous one. There are many adverse and hostile aspects, threatening the fortunes, labor, employment and the personal peace of mind. The tendency to imprudence and frivolity may encompass these unhappy conditions, but all benefits would come through integrity and self rule.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of adverse conditions, with trials and temptations in many directions. The employment is in jeopardy as well as the fortune, but with 'prudence, thrift and discretion in personal actions, pitfalls may be avoided.

A child born on this day may be prone to extravagance, self-indulgence and frivolity, which will militate against its progress and wellbeing, unless trained and disciplined in early life.

BATTING AVERAGES UPSET OLD THEORY

TO BACK up the claim made by himself and his friends that his naame ought to be inscribed on the Tunney-Muldoon heavyweight championship trophy along with the names of other former title-holders, Tommy Burns has another argument to advance apart from the one based upon his victory over Marvin Hart after the latter had defeated Jack Johnson and later Jack Root in the so-called title match that followed the retirement of Jim Jeffries in 1905.

Tommy Burns.

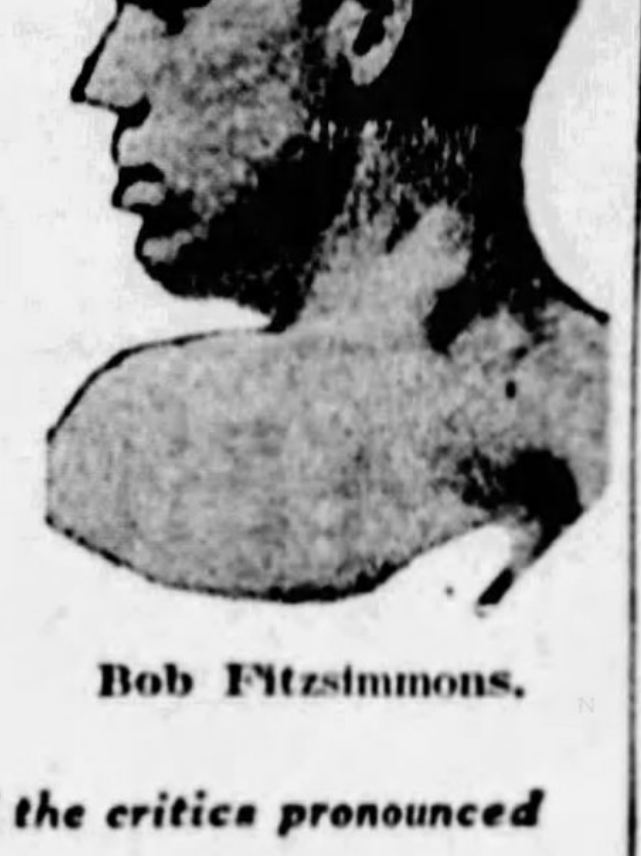
"They are a wise bunch," Burns says, referring to the trophy committee that omitted his name. They do things to suit themselves. Muldoon, one of the donors of the trophy, insists that a title must be won and lost in the ring. I agree with him on this question, for his own benefit he should find out how I really won the heavyweight title. I always figured Muldoon and Farley sportsmen, but I am sure that they made a mistake this time, which I am going to try to correct to the satisfaction of every one concerrned.

"JEFFRIES, in the first place, never handed, could not hand, the title to Marvin Hart. When Jeffries retired, the title went back to Bob Fitzsimmons, from whom Jeffries had won it. Philadelphia Jack O'Brien beat Fitzsimmons on December 20, 1905, and I beat O'Brien in May, 1907. Then I defeated the champions of all other countries where champions existed at the time, which made me a champion beyond doubt.

"I am not claiming that I was the greatest champion of all time. Far from it. Regarding my name being eliminated, that makes no difference to me. But people should try to stick to their ruling and not listen to gossip and bad judgment. I'd be pleased to get 10 minutes at the donors' dinner. Everything would be up and above board in my speech, and if I was not a world champion then I'll prove Muldoon never was a champion wrestler."

WHILE fight fans are practically a unit in supporting Burns in his claim that he is entitled to the rank of a former champion, not all of them will be found willing to agree with him in his new argument that the title of a retired fistic champion goes back to the man from whom he won it.

It would have been absurd to rate Fitz as champion when Jeffries quit. Bob was 43 years old then, and the extent to which he had gone back is shown by the fact that after the time of Jeffries' retirement, when Burns says he should have been proclaimed champion again, the Cornishman was knocked out by Jack O'Brien, Jack Johnson and even by Bill Lang. Imagine the middleweight title going back to Al McCoy if Mike O'Dowd had retired after defeating him. Whatever number of middleweight fighters there were in the country at the time, there was just that many who were better than McCoy.



Bob Fitzsimmons.

THE New York Rangers interrupted a long run of stone-wall goal-keeping on the part of Joe Miller, of the Pittsburgh hockey team, when they whizzed three markers past the Pirate net guardian here on Thursday night. Prior to that game Miller had been going at a sensational clip and stopping almost everything shot at him. In fact he had been doing close to the best goal-tending in the whole league. His brilliant work during the game against the Americans in New York last Sunday night was cheered repeatedly by the Gotham fans, and the critics pronounced it the best seen there this season.

WHEN the playing of Miller for the Pirates is compared with that of Roy Worters, to supplant whom he was brought here, it is interesting to note that in the last two games played between the Pirates and Americans, the Pittsburgh skaters scored three times on Worters whereas the New Yorkers were held scoreless by Miller in both encounters.

The Bucs are confident of swinging back into a winning stride against the Maroons in Montreal tonight. For one thing, both Harold Darragh and Hib Milks have been showing to better advantage since Frankie Frederickson arrived. The players are passing the puck more frequently and accurately now, and the opposition realizes that it has got to watch all three Pittsburgh forwards, as all are dangerous shots. The opposing defense is weakened and scoring becomes easier when the enemy is forced to watch three men instead of only one or two.

THE Sharkey-Stribling fight booked for Miami Beach on February 27 can now go through as scheduled, if anybody cares, for the prospective principals erased the last chance of a change in the bill by winning their respective fights last night. Stribling's victory had been a foregone conclusion, as he was merely taking on another palooka, and Sharkey's victory would have been equally certain in advance, if there had been any assurance that the erratic sailor would fight his battle along the correct lines.

For once, Sharkey did things properly, the greater part of the time, and the decision that he won on points, with the bout going the limit of 10 rounds, was only what was to have been expected under the circumstances. Christner would have had a chance if he had been able to induce Sharkey to make a slugging fight of it all the way, but though he did consent to mix it occasionally, the gob quickly got back each time to a style that would make his superior skill, speed and experience count. Christner didn't know enough about the game to cope with a superior boxer like Sharkey, and the men behind the Sharkey-Stribling Florida show evidently were aware of it when they let last night's match go through.

Jack Sharkey.

BILLY SOUTHWORTH, new Cardinal pilot, serves notice that he meant what he said in December when he declared that he would be a playing manager, if possible. He announces that he is a candidate for the right-field job, but says he will have an open mind on the question and will not appoint himself to the position unless he can honestly feel that he actually has won it. "I may be the manager, all right, but I'll have to beat out my competitors just the same to become the regular. Everybody is going to start from scratch, myself included. If I'm better than the other boys, that'll be fine. If they can push me to the bench that'll make us so much better, for if I do say it myself, I looked pretty good in Rochester last season."

THEY have dug up a new and novel record for Heinie Manush, Brown outfielder. Manush never was rated as a world-beater in a fielding sense, but during the 1927 season he cracked all records at Sportsmans Park by going through the entire home season without making an error.

For the campaign as a whole, Heinie was charged with three misplays, but all of them were made on the road. On his home lot, Manush played in 77 games without making a single foozle. The St. Louis playing field is said to be the worst in the majors, and this is the first time that any player has ever placed an errorless season to his credit there.

BASEBALL dopesters also believe they have discovered in the batting records of Manush and Goose Goslin, the leading two hitters of the American League for 1928, ground for an argument to refute

BASEBALL'S LATEST WRINKLE

Here is how Babe Ruth will appear at bat during the coming season wearing a uniform with No. 3 on his back. All of the Yankees will be numbered, and the movement probably will be copied throughout the majors and in the minor leagues as a step forward in the game. The Babe bats third for the Yanks and this will be his permanent number.

NEW BASEBALL NUMBERING PLAN NOT FOOLPROOF

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

GIVE 'em time, boys, and the powers that be in baseball will have the game as mixed up as the rule makers have managed to make football.

First we had the suggestion of President Heydler, of the National League, that teams be made up of 10 players, the extra man to bat for the pitcher. Now the Yankees come along with a plan, long agitated, to number the players.

This is a good stunt, but imagine the complications that may arise from such a situation.

The Yankees plan to give their players permanent numbers. Babe Ruth, for instance, is to be known as No. 3. Just like a fellow who has been jugged for minding his own business.

It has been suggested that it might be a fine idea to number the players as the scorers number them in the box scores. That is to say, have the pitcher No. 1, catcher No. 2, first baseman, No. 3, second baseman, No. 4, third baseman, No. 5, shortstop, No. 6, left fielder No. 7, middle fielder No. 8 and right fielder No. 9. Thus the fans would know at a glance not only the identity of the batter but also the position he plays in the field.

BUT what would happen if one of the players should be injured or indisposed and the manager should find it necessary to inject a sub who didn't have the same number or to shift his lineup and move the catcher to first base, or the shortstop to second, for instance? There you would have a fine kettle of fish. The plan would defeat its own purpose, and the first thing we'd know some manager would be protesting a game because No. 6 fielded out of position or out of turn.

THE St. Louis Cardinals tried the numbering system for a spell, the players wearing numerals on their sleeves. It didn't work out because the figures were not large enough to be seen distinctly from a distance.

Bill Corum, of the Hearst New York Evening Journal, tells a good hockey story. It concerns the tilt between Toots Holway, of the Pirates, and Billy Burch, of the New York Americans, in New York the other night. Birch wrapped his stick around Holway's physiognomy and was ordered out of the game by Referee Mike Hodden. It was said to be the first major penalty of Birch's career.

"I didn't mean it, Mike," Burch protested, but Hodden was firm and there was nothing for Burch to do but leave the ice. Before he departed, however, he moved over to Holway and unburdened himself of the following:

"Well, I did mean it. I've been laying for you for some time. You're too darn flip for a rookie."

O'Kelly-Gemas Bout Stopped In Third

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—A near riot was put on here by 3,000 fight fans at the Arena when Referee Joe Morrison, of Binghamton, stopped the feature bout between Con O'Kelly of Ireland, and George Gemas, of Philadelphia, in the third round. O'Kelly had the better of the fight but Gemas was apparently unharmed when the referee halted proceedings. The crowd rushed the ring and police had to escort Morrison to the dressing room. There were no knockdowns.

In view of the unsatisfactory termination of their fight, both O'Kelly and Gemas immediately signed for a second bout to be staged here February 8.

PIRATES PLAY MONTREAL TONIGHT

GAMES TONIGHT

Pittsburgh at Montreal.
Canadiens at Ottawa.
Chicago at Toronto.

MONTREAL, Jan. 26.—The Montreal Maroons, who have not scored a victory in their last nine starts, are prepared to accord Benny Leonard's Pittsburgh Pirates a warm reception in a National Hockey League game here tonight. The Maroons find it difficult to think other than kindly of the Steel City skaters, for it was against these foemen, in Pittsburgh, on January 1, that they registered their last triumph.

The Pirates, who have just about broken even in their last 10 games, are favorites to gain the decision in tonight's encounter. They have been traveling at a fast pace of late, and neither the Maroons nor the Canadiens have been able to beat them here this season. The Pittsburghers downed the Maroons, 3-2, in their last appearance here, and they have not been held scoreless in their last 11 games. The locals, on the other hand, have been held scoreless in their last two games and they have tallied only one goal in their last four encounters.

Both the guests and the hosts are in good physical condition for the encounter, and some fast, spirited milling is anticipated. The probable lineup:

Montreal.		Pittsburgh.
Walsh	G	Miller
Dutton	R. D.	McKinnon
Smith	L. D.	Smith
Stewart	C	Frederickson
Ward	R. W.	Darragh
Siebert	L. W.	Milks

Montreal spares—Lamb, Phillips, Trottier, Hicks, Robinson. Pittsburgh spares—Drury, White, Cotton, McCurry, Holway and McCaffrey.

Nurmi and Wide Run In Meets Tonight

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The foreign track and field invasion gets under way in earnest tonight when Paavo Nurmi and Edvin Wide both swing into action at widely separted points.

While Nurmi is making the second start of his new campaign in a two-mile run at the Prout Memorial Games in Boston, Wide, the Swedish holder of the two-mile outdoor record, appears in a 1,500-meter event at the Masonic games in the One Hundred and Second Engineers Armory here.

Bob Shawkey Hopes To Return to Yanks

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Bob Shawkey, former Yankee pitcher, who now is the property of the Montreal club, hopes to join the world champions again. Returning from a jaunt to Japan with Ty Cobb, Shawkey said he is going to undergo an operation Monday for the removal of a chipped bone in his right elbow which was partly responsible for his passing from the majors. With this done he hopes to form a connection with the Yankees in the combined roles of assistant coach and relief pitcher.

GAME IS FORFEITED

BUTLER, Pa., Jan. 26.—Because of an ineligible man participating in a game at Zelienople last Tuesday, Beaver Falls officials forfeited the game to Zelienople High. Caughery, a substitute player, had played a minute and a half, it was said, under an assumed name at Darlington the night before. Beaver Falls relinquished the game voluntarily. No protest had been made.

SHARKEY BEATS CHRISTNER, SAVES MIAMI SHOW

AKRON FIGHTER HANDS JACK CLOSE CALL

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—That fistic accident from Akron, courageous K. O. Christner, all but happened to Jack Sharkey, the garrulous gob from Boston, in a wild, free-swinging 10-round melee that turned the spacious Garden into a madhouse with close to 20,000 roaring inmates.

The Sailorman from New England, with his $100,000 engagement against Young Stribling in Miami Beach hanging in the balance, managed to win the decision and save the night for Madison Square Garden, but not until all his supporters and the promoters of the battle of the Southland had suffered the gravest fears for the worst.

Christner came out of the Midwest with a load of punching dynamite that was a constant threat every minute of the 10 rounds. He won only three of them, in the consensus of newspapermen at the ringside, but only Sharkey's splendid condition and dogged grit kept him from the canvas in several rounds.

OUTBOXES CHRISTNER

The Boston battler, fighting his last engagement before tackling Stribling in the first of the major heavyweight eliminations, outboxed the bull-chested rubber worker and, mixing a strange brand of caution with savagery, slugged his way out of several difficulties. He made Christner—34 years old, but a professional boxer for only the past year—seem childlike in efforts to land at times, while Jack never had difficulty, booming left and right-hand shots in Kayo's totally unprotected body.

But Christner let fly with those right-hand shots to the chin that stowed away Knute Hansen, and when they landed Sharkey stiffened, held desperately and had trouble a-plenty sweeping the cobwebs from his brain.

KAYO TAKES LEAD

For the first half of the engagement, Christner forced the fighting and more than held his own. He rushed the Boston tar around the ring, pummeled him about the head and body, and won the first, third and fifth sessions. Sharkey, far off form in his timing, wild with both hands, due to his long layoff, was content to let the Akron mauler set the pace.

Opening up in the sixth round, however, Sharkey took the offensive and forced Christner to lead and leave openings that brought both Jack's hands booming to the body. In every round thereafter Sharkey measured his tiring foe with vicious clouts to that iron midsection and speared Christners face with every wallop in the fight encyclopedia.

Christner slowed up under the pummeling, but never stopped trying. He took everything Sharkey had and, when openings came, let drive with the right hand that shook Jack from stem to stern. He was outclassed toward the close, for his lack of polish and boxing ability never gave him the chance he needed to end the battle with two of those vicious clouts in succession.

Although newspapermen at the ringside were almost unanimously in accord with the decision, the crowd booed the verdict, crowded about the ring and patted Christner on the back as he left the arena. The officials likewise differed in their decisions, Referee Jack Demming and Judge George Kelly voting for Sharkey, while Judge Tom Shortell called the fray a draw. Sharkey, who claimed he sprained his right thumb early in the fray, was roundly booed as he trotted to his dressing room.

There was little difference in the weights. Sharkey scaled 193, Christner 193½.

EMMETT ROCCO LOSES

Two clumsy heavyweights, the lefthanded Jack Gross, of Philadelphia, and Emmett Rocco, of Elwood, O., struggled through 10 drab rounds in the semi-final to a constant chorus of boos and jeers. Gross was awarded the decision.

Ducky Yates Cops Lakeworth Tourney

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 26.—Arthur (Ducky) Yates, one of America's ranking amateur golfers, added the Lakeworth championship to his collection yesterday by winning the 36-hole final from Jack Butler, former Notre Dame player. The New York star's margin was 8 and 7.

Three Pittsburgh golfers were competitors. They were T. C. Manning, C. J. Clauden and A. C. Sunstein. Manning was eliminated in the second round by E. T. Manson, of Boston. Claudon was put out in the semi-finals in the second flight by L. R. Sikes, of Palm Beach. Sunstein bowed to E. C. Kischell, of Minneapolis, in the third flight semifinals.

Tug Phillips Fouls Hahn at Erie

Johnny Hahn, Oil City, won on a foul over Tug Phillips, Pittsburgh, in four rounds, and Joe Feldman, Cleveland, knocked out Joey Smith, Buffalo, in the second round of a four-round bout.

YOUNG STRIBLING STOPS LAST SETUP IN THIRD

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—W. L. (Young) Stribling, of Macon, Ga., contender for the heavyweight championship throne vacated by Gene Tunney, won a technical knockout over Ralph Smith, Los Angeles giant, in the third round of their scheduled 10-round bout here last night.

Stribling floored his opponent four times in the first round, once in the second and once in the third. Then the referee stopped the bout.

When the massive Californian stood up in his corner before the fight started the fans gazed at his 222 pounds and at his six feet five and one-half inches in height in awe. Stribling looked like a dwarf beside his opponent. Stribling weighed 184.

In only a few seconds of the first round Stribling had Smith on his knees and then for the remainder of the period it was case of up again, down again for the Californian.

Stribling hit Smith at will, raining blows on the body and face. One of the first blows landed on the Californian's nose which bled during the remainder of the contest.

They sparred for a little while in the third and then Stribling's left shot into the Californian's jaw and he went down again. Smith arose but it was apparent that he was in no condition to fight and after a few seconds the referee called a halt. Smith did not land a single solid blow on Stribling.

Battle Pitt

For the first time in local basketball history, a West Point Cadet team is playing in Pittsburgh tonight, when the soldiers battle the Pitt Panthers in the Stadium pavilion. Above are four star members of the Army squad, which has a winning streak of nine games and is rated one of the best in the East.

Many Grid Coaches After Thiel Berth

GREENVILLE, Pa., Jan. 26.—A large number of applications have been received at Thiel College for the position as head football coach to succeed Dr. Thomas Holleran, who recently resigned after six years of work. Prof. N. W. Harter, C. D. Rissell and Jack Stoeber have been named by the athletic association to select the coach.

Such well-known athletes as Bill Kern, Guy Chamberlain, Herb Kopf, Lloyd Jordan, P. F. Hall, W. E. Harrington, Allan Wierman, R. E. Rowley and H. P. Talmadge are said to be after the job.

WESTMINSTER HANDS TECH DRUBBING

By JESS CARVER.

What should be the ice cream and cake course of the season's college basketball menu will be presented in the Stadium pavilion tonight as the West Point Cadets and the University of Pittsburgh's Golden Panthers leap at each other's throats.

The game is such a colorful appearing one, and has attracted so much attention that it has caused Mr. Don Saunders, the well-known tenor of Sterling, Ill., to break forth into lyrical song. Here it is:

"Whether it rain,
Or whether it snow,
Pitt and the Army
Are ready to go."

Any ball game that can cause a person to bust out with such a vocal barrage must be worth seeing.

The West Pointers arrived last night with a record of nine triumphs in as many starts, a record they are nursing very carefully. Among the more prominent teams which have felt the lash of the Army attack have been Columbia and Princeton of the Eastern Collegiate League, New York University, Bucknell and Lehigh.

RECORD IMPRESSIVE

Delaware, Dickinson, Middlebury and McGill were the other four teams to bow before the Cadets. The Soldiers didn't run up any big scores in any of these games, in fact, most of them were won by narrow margins, but they were won. That is the important thing.

This is the first time in history that an Army or Navy major sport team has appeared in Pittsburgh. The 5,200 capacity of the pavilion is certain to be taxed to the utmost. The smart folks will get there early. Why not join 'em?

Making, as usual, a sap out of this correspondent, who wrote yesterday that there would be a change or two in the Pitt lineup, Dr. H. C. Carlson of the Panthers has come out with the announcement that the Pitt lineup which he will send into the fray against the Soldiers tonight will be the same that has started all of the major Pitt games this year. This means that the starting lineups likely will be as follows:

Pitt.		West Point.
Hyatt	F	(C.) Draper
Zehfuss	F	Krueger
L. Cohen	C	Strother
Wunderlich (C.)	G	Malloy
Baker	G	Zimmerman or Messinger

In a preliminary contest, slated to begin at 7 o'clock, the Pitt Freshmen will engage Kiski School. This is a worthy prelim to the very worthy varsity encounter. Cal Bolster will referee the big game with Jim Mates umpiring. The varsity contest will start at eight bells.

WESTMINSTER TRIMS SKIBOS

Here is one to figure out. Geneva loses to Carnegie, beats Westminster and Westminster smashes Carnegie. That makes the Goldenson Vanities champs.

The Westminster Titans ran rough shod over Tech last night in the district's feature college battle. Establishing a 31-to-8 lead at half time, 10 points greater than the margin enjoyed by Pitt two nights before, the Blue and White Whirlwinds romped on to an eventual 47-28 victory.

Carnegie was lost during the first half, bewildered by the fine aggressive floor play of Babe O'Donovan and the scoring sorties of Delahunty and Tudor Lewis. Delahunty threw four hoops and Tudor three, while O'Donovan and Red Crowell helped out with a pair apiece.

Then in the second half, Tudor broke loose and hooked in four goals to take the high scoring honors. Merton of Carnegie, unable to get into the going during the first period, came back nicely after the intermission and caged four buckets, putting Tech more or less in the ball game, mostly more.

The lineup:

Westminster—47.		Carnegie—28.
O'Donovan	F	(C.) White
Delahunty	F	Crum
Crowell	C	Merton
T. Lewis	G	High
Rice	G	Nease

Score by periods:

Westminster	31	16—47
Carnegie	8	20—28

Substitutions—Tech: Fox, Brown, Weiss, Traa. Westminster: Ayers, Fisher, Czineski, Kocheran, W. Lewis. Scoring, field goals—Westminster: O'Donovan 4, Delahunty 5, Crowell 2, T. Lewis 7, Czineski. Tech: White 2, Merton 4, Nease 2, Brown 3. Fouls—Westminster: O'Donovan, 0 out of 2; Delahunty, 3 out of 3; Crowell, 2 out of 4; T. Lewis, 2 out of 3; Fisher, 0 out of 1. Tech: White, 0 out of 2; Crum, out of 2; Nease, 3 out of 4; Brown, 1 out of 2. Team fouls—Tech, 6 out of 10. Westminster, 7 out of 13. Leading scorer—T. Lewis, Westminster, 16 points. Time of periods—20 minutes. Referee—Al Slack. Umpire—Cal Bolster.

FROTH

Beggs Snyder is working the Penn State-Colgate game at State College tonight—Have you noticed that Beggs is not working for Mr. Keogan of Notre Dame this year?—We are all more or less setups for the blondes—You can't get a key for an oarlock—The Floyd McNees's of Ambridge will attend the Pitt-Army game tonight—So will Paul Jones of Beaver—And lots of other folks—Anyone at tonight's game with extra refreshments, see Froth between halves—In the back room—Watch your hat and overcoat.

Goldberg Among Tourney Leader

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 26.—Rube Goldberg, famous cartoonist of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, finished among the leaders in the four ball, best ball handicap competition of the Artists' and Writers' Golf Association championship tournament, which comes to a close here today.

Goldberg was teamed with H. T. Webster, another artist, and they had a combined score of 39-40—79. The championship was retained by Grantland Rice, who defeated Rex Beach in the 18-hole final by and 1.

LABARBA SCORES K. O.

SYDNEY, New South Wales, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Fidel LaBarba, American bantamweight, today knocked out McAllister in the fourth round of their match here. LaBarba is the former flyweight champion of the world. He resigned that title to enter college, but now is doing a comeback.

SMITH, DUDLEY LEAD

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Horton Smith, of Joplin, Mo., and Ed Dudley, of Los Angeles, playing in the same threesome, burned up a wintry course here yesterday for a pair of 69's to lead the field in the first round of the Texas open golf tournament.

PROMOTERS BUSY ON PRELIMS

Promoters Jim McGirr and Francis Flynn are working today on the preliminary cards for their boxing shows to be held, respectively, next Thursday and Friday nights, in the McKeesport arena and the Moose Temple, downtown.

Each has announced a good main bout. Midget Mike O'Dowd, of Louisville, will battle Howard Mayberry, of Donora, in the 10-round windup in the Tube City, while Harry Felix, of New York, former sparring partner of Sid Terris, hooks up with Cuddy DeMarco, of McKeesport, over whom he already holds a decision, in the main event at the Temple.

Three six-round bouts will round out each of the bills.

CRAWLEY BACK HOME

Tommy Crawley (not Crowley), of the South Side, who returned recently from Indianapolis, where he had been campaigning, will meet Joe Boychan in a 10-round bout at Steubenville, O., Monday night and has a match pending with Battling Gizzy at the Moose Temple here within a few weeks.

Bill Heckman claims Johnny Haggerty got the works in the decision handed down against him in his bout with Johnny Chiodo at Johnstown, Thursday night. Bill admits the bout was close, but is firm in his conviction that his man deserved the award.

Five inter-city bouts with Detroit amateurs and three battles between local rivals make up a card at the P. A. A. tonight.

O'KELLY, MALONEY AGAIN

Con O'Kelly and Jim Maloney, the two fighting Irishmen, who recently fought a draw in Madison Square Garden, New York, have been rematched for Boston's Garden next Friday night.

Al Singer, New York's brilliant young featherweight, has signed for a bout with Bud Taylor in Madison Square Garden, New York, February 8.

Sid Terris, the New York lightweight, is now managing himself. He boxes Babe Herman, the veteran, at the St. Nicholas arena, New York, Monday night.

Benny Bass, who boxes Ray Chapman in a return bout in the Arena in Philadelphia Monday night, answers the gong again five nights later against Eddie Anderson at St. Louis.

K. O. Christner's Uncle Lives In Brookline

One of the men most interested in the outcome of the Jack Sharkey-K. O. Christner fight in Madison Square Garden, New York, last night was a Pittsburgher, Wilson Christner, uncle of K. O., who resides at 2751 Queensboro street, Brookline.

Like Christner's father, who resides near Cumberland, Md., and is a brother of the Pittsburgher, Wilson Christner is a passenger conductor for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Their run is on the Capitol Limited. The boxer's father was en route to New York last night on his regular "trick" while K. O. was fighting in the Garden.

According to the boxer's uncle, K. O. is not as old as he is reported. He is short of his thirty-second birthday, and not nearly 35, as has been generally accepted. The boxer's father is a frequent visitor here. K. O. makes his home in Akron.

New York U. Signs Meehan for Three Years

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—John F. (Chick) Meehan will be head football coach at New York University for at least three more years. He has signed to continue in his present capacity through the season of 1931, it has been announced.

Y. M. H. A., EAST LIBERTY BATTLE FOR LEAD

By JULIUS LEVIN.

IT WILL be a battle for first place in two divisions of the Greater Pittsburgh Institutional League tonight when the Young Men's Hebrew Association's senior and reserve teams clash with the East Liberty Y. M. C. A. passers in second-round games on the Y. M. H. A. floor.

Strange as it may seem, the Y. M. H. A. and East Liberty teams, both in the senior and reserve circuits, are deadlocked for first place, each of the four quintets winning their first two second-round battles.

The Y. M. H. A. senior quintet finished in a deadlock with Kingsley House for the first half championship, while its reserves had no difficulty in winning the laurels in their circuit. The first-half deadlock will be decided next Thursday night when the two teams meet at East Liberty Y. M. C. A. in a playoff contest.

IMPROVED TEAM

While East Liberty did not flash consistent form during the initial round of play, Coach Dalton Williams' passers have shown enough class in the closing half to rate them one of the strongest quintets in the race. The invaders hope to check the winning streak of the Bellefielders, which includes two in a row over East Liberty. The East Liberty passers at present are going at top speed and they are apt to give the home boys a strenuous session tonight.

In the other Institutional League games tonight the senior and reserve teams representing Heinz House and Community House clash on the Community House floor. The two North Side quintets have been rivals for a number of years and their battles invariably attract capacity crowds. Tonight's contests should prove no exception.

DRIBBLES

Butler is all agog over tonight's battle between the Cleveland Rosenblum-Celtics and the Armco quintet. The Rosies, including in their lineup three former New York Celtic stars, are prime favorites in the Butler district and arrangements have been made to accommodate a capacity turnout tonight. Tonight's game is the seventh in as many days for the American Leaguers. Tomorrow night they wind up their tri-state district tour by meeting Columbus in that city.

St. Henry's wants games with light first-class teams at home and abroad. Write the manager at St. Henry's Lyceum, Mt. Oliver.

The Washington Eagles want games at home and abroad with light first-class teams. Write John Billing, 106 East Maiden street, Washington, Pa., or Call Washington 9946.

Two games are scheduled tonight in the Homestead District League, the Lawrys opposing the Wotherspoons in the first, while Conleys clash with Boot Shop in the second. The Homestead race has stirred up considerable interest in local professional circles and large crowds are turning out at all league games at Elks Temple.

The Duquesne Lafayettes, champions in the first round of the Allegheny County League race, will be the attraction of Duquesne Light at the South Side Market House in a second-half game.

BOOTERS PLAY IN NATIONAL TILTS TODAY

TODAY'S GAMES

National Amateur Cup

Heidelberg at Union Switch and Signal.

Corinthians at Pittsburgh Celtics (Leslie Park)

By TOM BIRKS

This afternoon soccerdom again will be back with the National amateur cup competition, and Pittsburgh's metropolitan fans have two interesting battles to take in, one at Swissvale, which will find Heidelberg, former National amateur champion, trying to repeat in the race at the expense of Jack Thomas' Union Switch and Signal eleven, and the other at Leslie Park, with the Corinthians and Pittsburgh Celtics in action.

Both Heidelberg and Switch are in great condition. Manager Balsarini of Heidelberg states that Buff Donnelli, Duquesne University's grid captain and Western Pennsylvania's greatest shot, will be in the Green and Gold lineup. There is no mistake about it—Heidelberg is eager to meet the Cleveland champs again in this tourney.

Tri-boro fans will see a good fight. Switch feels that it is going to stop Heidelberg. Jack Campbell was enthusiastic last evening and the Switch is rarin' to go.

The Leslie Park battle will find the Celtics greatly strengthened for the National tourney. The Corinthians are playing fine soccer and, with McKay confident, anything might happen. Tom Edwards announces that Jones, Chartiers' Valley junior, will lead the line.

WAGNER, LAJOIE MAY ATTEND BANQUET

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

An attempt will be made to bring together at the baseball writers' banquet next month Honus Wagner and Larry Jajoie, two of the greatest hitters in the annals of the sport, who accomplished their feats under conditions vastly more unfavorable than at present.

In the heyday of Wagner and Lajoie, a .300 hitter was of the aristocracy. In the modern era of lively balls, with a new one tossed in on the slightest provocation, a fair batter can maintain a membership in the select circle. When Honus and Larry were doing their stuff they saw a new sphere at the start of the battle and darn few thereafter.

MANY .300 HITTERS NOW

In the last campaign in the majors 97 good, bad and mediocre players batted .300 or better. Just think of it!

Consider the other side of the picture. Twenty years ago the Flying Dutchman led the National League in batting with a mark of .350. Only three other athletes of the league were able to do as good as .300 that season! The three were Sherwood Magee, Clarence Beaumont and Tommy Leach.

Wagner and Lajoie—not to mention Ed Delehanty—hitting the present-day ball would keep a force of men in work repairing the fences and adjacent buildings.

FINER POINTS LOST

The lively ball, too, has had a tendency to give the sport a lot of "dumb" action. Twenty years ago, a fellow like Wagner or Cobb would flash a clever baserunning trick to win a close ball game. How often do you see that done in this day?

The percentage appears to be in socking the ball, with finer points of the game relegated to the background. The drop in attendance last year probably told the magnates that fluke homers and that sort of thing were hurting the game. It is time something is done to remove the sore spots.

Chillysauce

ENGELSBERG VS. VERONA

"He jumped me," claimed Joe.
"And he tore off my clothes,
"He twisted my wrist,
"And he bloodied my nose,
"He hammered my jaw,
"And he made my eyes blue."

"I didn't," said John.
"But I'd like to."
—Bard of Wylie Avenue.

Charles Leo Hartnett, of the Cubs, best catcher in the National League, will be married next week.

Many folks dislike Leo's nickname—"Gabby." He is too fine a boy to be carrying around such a moniker—but he probably won't do so much talking after next week.

Freddie Lindstrom, a young married man, when called on for a speech at the Traynor banquet, declared that he had no time to practice talking and therefore was no public speaker.

"If I say a word to an umpire he chases me; I'm not going to court a fine by talking back to McGraw, and when I get home after the game I can't get a word in," quoth Freddie, whose speech was a knockout.

SPORT COMMENT

By JAMES J. LONG

the theory that left-hand batsmen have a natural advantage over right-hand pitchers, and vice versa.

This old dope was borne out last season by Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, particularly in the case of Gehrig, who batted .402 against right-handers and only .313 against left-handers, but Goslin and Manush piled up evidence of just the opposite kind.

Goose Goslin.

BOTH the Goose and Heinie are left-hand swingers, but it appeared to make little difference to either of them last season from which side the opposing hurlers delivered the ball. According to the generally accepted theory they ought to get better results against right-handers than against southpaws, but last year Manush batted .383 against fork-handers and only .374 against right-handers, and Goslin came within four points of making as good a record against southpaws as he made against right-handers, his respective average being .376 and .380 Commenting on these performances, Harry Heilmann, Detroit right-hand hitting star, remarks that right hand pitchers always are easier for him to hit than left-handers.

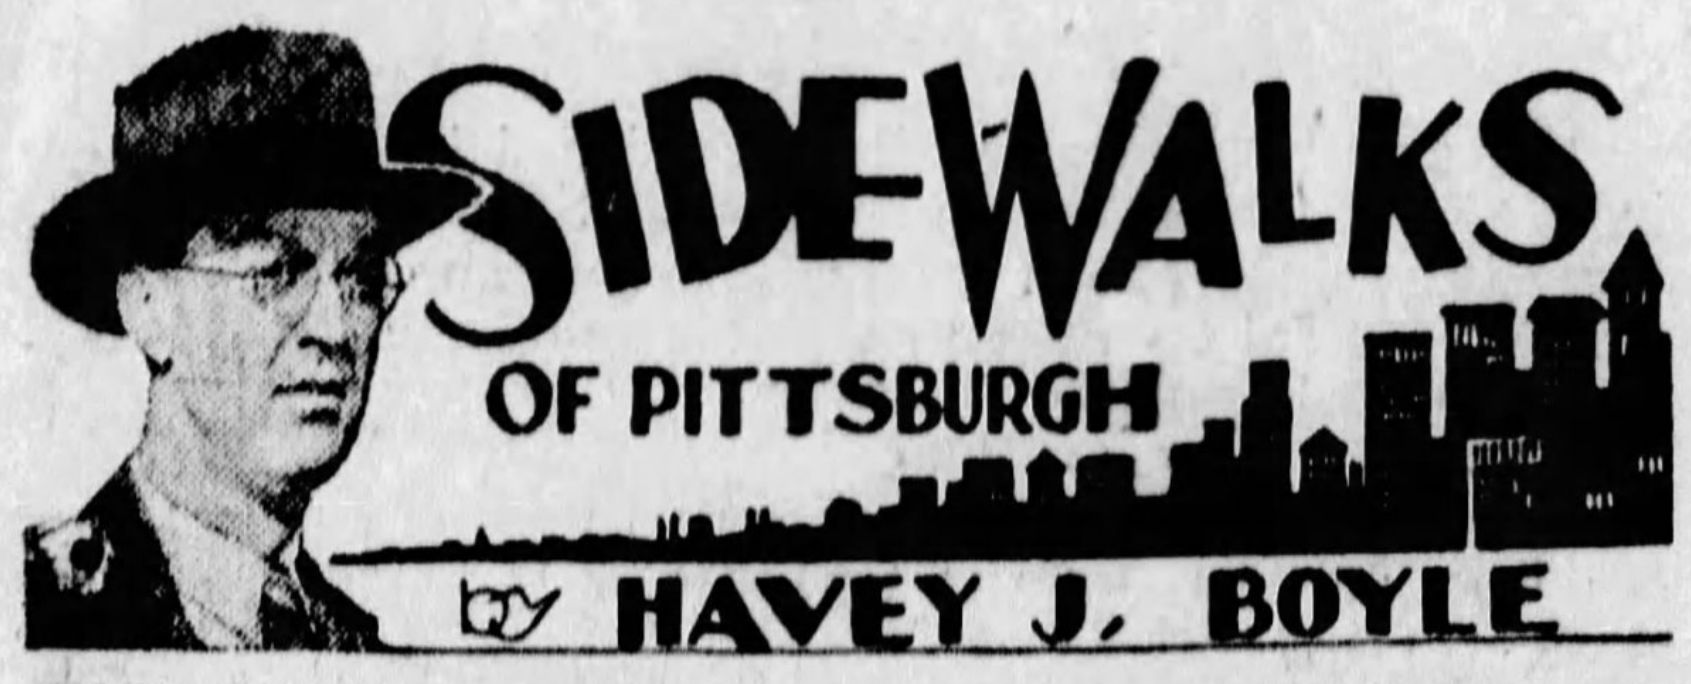
NORTH SIDE, SOUTH HILLS And EAST END NEWS

THREE MORE RAIDS MADE ON NORTH SIDE



JOHN HERNON is working hard for the success of the testimonial banquet for John Gruber, which has been mentioned here before. It is to be held February 14 in the William Penn Hotel. Mr. Hernon asks for a few names of persons that Sidewalks knows will want to make reservations.

Well, as one suggestion, there should be a table set aside for the Submarine Club, which in the athletic world was known as the Carrick Soap-Wrappers. Such a table would be made up of Dick Lewis, John, Louie and Harry Lauer, Ben Werner, Louis and Joseph Guertner and Ernie Lesker.

* * *

The survivors of the famous old Emerald Club of the South Side should have representation, for it was on that club in the old days where, as Mr. Gruber watched the young athletes, all matters of dispute as to old records were referred to Mr. Gruber.

YOU WORK 12 HRS. THEN TRAIN FOR BOXING ?
SURE — IT KEEPS YOU STRONG !

It was in the Emerald Club where a fine broth of a boy, fresh from 12 hours' work in the steel mills, which he hardly felt in those days, would train for boxing tournaments or make ready to engage in a foot race.

* * *

IT WOULD appear reasonable that Francis Kirley, of the South Side, now in the realm of politics, but once known as Knockout Kirley, will be on hand with a delegation. Who can forget that old local feud of the ring, the Kirley adherents as opposed to the Gussie Reynolds partisans, which was settled fairly enough in the old South Side Market House with each scoring a knockout in two engagements?

* * *

And how about the Kirkpatrick boys, Enos and Flynn, both adepts in professional baseball, who, eschewing that game, now score low in golf? Those boys from Beltzhoover, which was the breeding place of as many ball players as any similar place in the country, will probably want to be on hand to get a fragrant whiff of old-time boquets.

* * *

AND, Mr. Hernon, there should be an old-time number on that program. I'd like to see the famous Pittsburgh boys of another day, now gray and elderly and dignified, introduced in a two-minute speech, while back in the corner the orchestra would be playing sweet and low: "Annie Rooney," "The Blue and the Gray," "Goodby, My Blue Belle," "The Banks of the Wabash," "Father Was Killed by the Pinkerton Men," and many another.

The whole thing, Mr. Hernon, should develop into a class reunion for those of us who never went to any class. It will do honor to an old professor, who in an unorganized school, developed quite a few pupils.

If anyone reads between the lines they'll see that Sidewalks wants the Gruber dinner to be the swellest thing imaginable.

* * *

My Dear Sir: In your column in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph you told a little story about how the Youghiogheny acquired its name. Last summer I heard another tale how the river was named. While visiting relatives back in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, in Virginia, a cousin told me the following story that had been told him by his grandfather who left this section 53 years ago to settle in the mountains.

YOUGH AGAINY !
NO CATCHEM ANSWER !

Indians still owned the section around here. A white man ran a ferry on the little river. Late one night another white man and his Indian companion came down to the river. Knowing there was a ferryman on the other side they decided they would be rowed across. The man whooped to the ferryman, but received no answer. He tried it several times then settled down to wait a few minutes. After a spell of silence the Indian turned to his companion and said: "Yough againy." Signed: Edna Grimes, Coal Valley, Pa.

PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH NEWSBOYS OF THE LINCOLN AVENUE DISTRICT

SUN-TELE BOYS MAKE PLENTY

Judging from the candy, pretzels and pop bought by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph newsboys in the Lincoln avenue district, as they poured into the store of the Lincoln News Company, 1506 Lincoln avenue, after school, to get their papers, there is no scarcity of spending money among them.

Questioning disclosed that the money they spend on candy, movies and the like is only an infinitesimal part of their earnings. They turn over the bulk of what they make to their mothers or deposit it in the savings bank.

ALL WELL SATISFIED

These boys handle only the Sun-Telegraph, of the Pittsburgh evening and Sunday papers. That they are well satisfied with the treatment they receive from the Sun-Telegraph and from Joseph Zimmerman, manager of the Lincoln News Company, was plain from their comments on the situation. Not one has accepted the invitation to give up the Sun-Telegraph in favor of another paper.

Norman R. Heinz said:

"My pay has been satisfactory to me at all times. Now that I am delivering the Sun-Telegraph only my wages remain the same as when I delivered another Pittsburgh evening paper also. I will never care to sell any other paper but the Sun-Telegraph."

ALWAYS ON "SQUARE"

Stanley P. Fogle, 1336 Olivant street, said:

"I have always liked the Sun-Telegraph ever since I first started to sell papers, and have always been given a fair wage for selling it. The Sun-Telegraph is the only paper that ever did give us a square deal. Mr. Zimmerman has always treated his newsboys fair and square, and we will remain faithful to him."

Norbert P. Carr, 15, of 7147 Westmoreland street, a freshman in the Central High School, said:

"Mr. Zimmerman always has paid me wages which were more than sufficient for the labor I performed. Sun-Telegraph newsboys receive as much pay as those serving any other newspaper."

An illustration of the opportunity that the Sun-Telegraph offers newsboys to improve themselves is found in the case of Thomas Keneavy, 13, of Tier street, who is paying for his musical education out of his earnings. He takes violin lessons.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.

Certainly a great business opportunity showed up in the papers today. "No training, no conscience necessary, all you need is six hundred thousand dollars, but you get it back the first good day."

Wall Street is dividing the kitty with 275 more members. The eleven hundred they did have could take care of Mr. Sap, but when Mrs. Sap started playing, they just had to go out and get more help to rake in the dough.

The farmers ought to go in together and buy one seat. That would relieve the whole bunch.

Yours, WILL.

P. S.—Didn't we used to have a word during the war called nonessential?

Firebrands Hope Stewart Will Lick Rockefeller; Why?

By B. C. FORBES

DON'T imagine for a moment that the great majority of workers and other ordinary folk throughout the country regard big business as approvingly as it regards itself. Millions of people still have the idea that big business and high finance are utterly selfish, far from honest, out solely for their own pockets and utterly callous to the wellbeing of workers and the public.

Socialists, Communists, and other enemies of the "capitalistic system" have drawn abundant ammunition from the long-drawn-out Sinclair-Stewart-Blackmer revelations regarding the millions of dollars they and a few intimates secretly laid their hands on through the mysterious Continental Trading Company, organized to put through a deal which brough wholesale condemnation when dragged into the light.

The subsequent action of those involved in that now notorious transaction served only to confirm suspicion that its perpetrators were anything but proud of what they had done. There was significant scurrying to foreign soils when an investigation approached. Blackmer, rather than return and face the music, has preferred to have the government confiscate his property here.

EVEN within the ranks of big business and high finance there have been few, if any, defenders of the Sinclair-Stewart-Blackmer - Continental Company jugglery. But published criticism and condemnation have come chiefly from editorial writers, politicians, and working-class agitators, particularly the last.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., whose family founded the Standard Oil Company, has, however, boldly come forward with a demand that Stewart withdraw from the chairmanship of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. Mr. Rockefeller contends that when the scandal first came to the surface he received a definite promise from Col. Robert W. Stewart that he would resign whenever Mr. Rockefeller should request him to do so. Instead of resigning, Stewart has elected to fight Rockefeller for control of votes at the coming election of officers on March 7. The battle for proxies is now being waged.

THE outcome will be watched with intense interest by all classes. Every malcontent, every Socialist, every Communist is eager to see Stewart win. His victory would be acclaimed by them as proof positive that big business and high finance are as rotten, as crooked, as selfish as their worst enemies picture them.

Anyone who knows young Rockefeller realizes how distasteful so unpleasant an episode is to him. He is essentially a man of peace and does not court the limelight. He has been moved to take the stand he has taken, not by any mercenary or spiteful motive, but wholly because of his conception of how business should be conducted and how it should not be conducted. The whole Continental Trading deal disgusted him, as it disgusted many others.

Should Col. Stewart's conduct be upheld and Rockefeller's protest defeated, big business and high finance will receive a blow whose final consequences cannot be gauged.

Incidentally, it is unthinkable that Col. Stewart or anyone else familiar with the David-and-Solomon relations between the elder and younger Rockefellers could imagine for a moment that the father would dream of doing other than support his son. I know no family where filial ties are closer.

A PREDICTION: Ambassador Morrow will return to Mexico because his job there is not finished. Later he will either go to London as ambassador or be taken into President Hoover's cabinet. Each is an admirer of the other's mentality and ability.

A BILLION-DOLLAR banking institution has arisen in a third American city, San Francisco. It is not so long ago that the first one, the National City Bank of New York, was developed in this country. But already New York has two more, the Chase and the Guaranty Trust Company, and Chicago also now has one, the Continental.

A. P. Giannini, of San Francisco and Los Angeles, is the creator of the first billion-dollar Pacific coast enterprise, the Transamerica Corporation. This structure was organized to acquire stock ownership in the Bancitaly Corporation, the Bank of Italy and their affiliated and subsidiary companies.

According to unofficial analysis, the total resources of the Transamerica Corporation and its affiliations have reached $1,300,000,000. Other Giannini institutions, including the Bank of America (New York), the Bank America of California, and Giannini's Italian Bank (which has 98 branches in Italy), swell the total resources of interests under his sponsorship to more than $2,200,000,000, enough to take away one's breath.

THE leading bulls express confidence in their ability to keep things going in what they regard as the right direction—meaning upwards—until Hoover's inauguration. About what may happen after that, they do not care to commit themselves.

STOCKS MOVE INTO HIGHER GROUND

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The stock market again moved higher at the opening today, under the leadership of American Telephone, which jumped 5 points to 212, a record high, in a transaction of 5,000 shares. Southern Railway, American Can, Kroger and Westinghouse all sold a point and more higher. Coty opened with a block of 15,000 shares up a point.

The upward movement continued during the first hour, with not much evidence of week-end selling. The pace of trading, however, moderated considerably from yesterday.

There was little in the overnight news to influence sentiment, save the weekly trade and business reviews, which reported continued acceleration in the steel, automobile and machinery industries, and generally expanding commercial operations, with indications that they have not yet reached full swing.

The utilities were again conspicuously strong. Consolidated Gas and Federal Light and Traction each stepped up a point to new high levels. Underwood Elliot Fisher moved up more than 3 points and Curtiss Aero, Wright, Gillette and Goodyear about 3 points each.

Air Reduction, Commercial Investment Trust and Coty moved up 2 points and more to new highs, while Union Carbide, Columbian Carbon and Stewart Warner gained 2 points each. Public Service of New Jersey, General Motors (old) and Hudson gained a point or so.

Foreign exchanges were steady, with sterling cables at $4.84 29-32.

Two Los Angeles Banks to Merge

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Directors of the First National Trust and Savings and the Security Trust and Savings banks at Los Angeles announced yesterday that a plan for consolidating the two banks had been adopted. The new bank will have resources of more than $600,000,000. Henry H. Robinson, president of the First National, will be chairman of the board.

SCREW AND BOLT SCORES WIDE OVERNIGHT GAIN

Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt continued its sensational rise in the short session of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Very little of the stock was available and an overnight gain of five points failed to attract profit-taking of any consequence.

Traders who have been following the long side of Screw and Bolt are holding on for higher prices, and the more optimistic bulls on the stock are talking prices much higher than any yet recorded. Several factors contribute to the strength in the shares. The speculative attraction at the moment is in a new airplane propeller the company will manufacture on a royalty basis. The company is also said to have obtained an important contract from the Pennsylvania Railroad and, through other affiliations recently consolidated, will be able to keep the western plant at capacity operations for the greater part of the year, according to present prospects. Earnings for 1928 have not been made public, but they will show a decided gain over 1927, when $5 a share was earned on the common. Merger of Screw and Bolt with Colona Manufacturing is also freely discussed in the street, but the terms of the deal have not been made known.

Lone Star Gas jumped forward suddenly in this morning's trading and sold above 71 as against the resting level of 70 at which the stock had been changing hands the past few days. Lone Star's earnings for 1928 are estimated at about 25 per cent larger than the previous year. According to Street gossip, a capital rearrangement will be made but may not take place until around the middle of the year. Lone Star is one of the best gas properties in the Southwest, serving the Dallas and Fort Worth regions, and it is understood plans for expansion of the company's marketing territory are progressing steadily.

San Toy Mining made a further gain this morning and was also higher in New York. Demand for the stock continues to come from the sources buying when it was 15 to 18 cents a share under today's quotations.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Hudson Motor Earned $8.43.

Hudson Motor Company year ended December 31 had net income after depreciation, federal taxes, etc., equal to $8.43 a share against $9.04 in 1927. President Jackson said: "Outlook for first half 1929 is by far the best we have ever known. We will be short of our market demand notwithstanding our increased schedule."

Speculation Worries Schwab.

Extensive stock speculation is a source of worry to Charles M. Schwab, he averred as he sailed for Europe at midnight Friday. "If a crash comes and the horde of speculators lose their money," he observed, "it is likely to mean very bad business for manufacturers and business people generally." Business, particularly the steel business, inspired the usual optimism in Mr. Schwab.

Southern Pacific.

While Southern Pacific has been a discouragement to traders looking for a quick turn, the stock continues to find considerable favor with interests willing to take a long pull position. Southern Pacific has been on a $6 dividend basis since 1907, during which time large sums have been put back into the property. With earnings last year nearly double dividend requirements, considerable confidence is entertained regarding the likelihood of a higher payment to shareholders during the current year. Directors are scheduled to meet February 14 and there is some expectation that the matter of a dividend increase may come up at that time. Southern Pacific has practically completed an extensive program of improvements which was inaugurated nearly 10 years ago and is apparently in position to treat its shareholders with greater generosity.

Weather Helps Retail Trade.

Bradstreet's Weekly Trade Review says: Mid-winter weather conditions continue to favor indoor operations, especially in factory industry, which maintains its lead in activity, as compared with other forms of business activity. Severe cold with, in most areas, very stormy weather, has tended to retard business by salesmen on the road, while retail trade has been helped by the weather, mainly in population centers. In all three lines, however, operations were relatively more active than a year ago. In the list of favored industries, iron, steel automobile, implement and machinery manufacturing lines seemed to have an unquestionable lead, but cold weather very generally helped the coal industry; copper mining was active under the stimulus of larg foreign and domestic takings, and oil-well and gas supplies, electrical goods and radio materials were bought freely. In the list of less fortunately situated trade, dry-goods buying outside of large centers was reported rather spotty, building operations were interfered with in many instances by weather conditions, and buying of wool, knitwear and jewelry was spotty. Weekly bank clearings $13,740,096,000, an increase of 30.8 per cent over a year ago.

Copper Situation Strong.

Copper buying is moderate on foreign account and quiet on domestic. Good orders are coming into fabricators from consumers and it is certain that domestic and probably foreign consumption will remain at a high level until at least the middle of the year. In every respect, the copper situation is excellent and probably will work higher.

The calender year, 1928, was the greatest 12 month period in the history of Packard Motor Car Company, and topped by several million dollars the record profit of $21,885,416 or $7.28 a share, reported for the fiscal year ended August 31, 1928. For year ended December 31, 1928, Packard earned $25,691,826 after all charges, equal to $8.54 a share on 3,004,264 shares—$10 par—of capital stock. Profits were $10,617,143 or $3.53 a share in the last four months of 1928. This compared with $6,810,901, or $2.26 a share in the similar period in 1927. Notwithstanding dividend payments in 1928 of $16,560,000 and expenditures of $9,000,000 for plant improvements. Packard closed the year with cash amounting to $18,500,000 an increase of $3,500,000 over the close of the calendar year, 1927. PARIS PARLEY TO INFLUENCE WORLD TRADE

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

FINANCIAL and industrial developments of world-wide importance hang upon the outcome of the attempt to permanently settle the German reparations problem to be made shortly. The success of the negotiations and the form of the agreement reached may mean more than a mere change in the commercial prosperity of a few European countries. They are likely to have a profound effect on business here and in every part of the world.

The reparations commission, on which J. P. Morgan and Owen D. Young will serve as unofficial American members, will attempt to complete the work started by the Dawes plan.

The amount of reparations which Germany owes the allied nations has never been determined. The Dawes plan merely estimated the amounts which Germany might be able to pay annually and set up machinery for making the collections. Germany was to pay $250,000,000 in 1924. This was increased each year on a sliding scale until a standard annuity was reached this year of $600,000,000.

IN spite of Germany's protests, S. Parker Gilbert, Jr., agent general for reparations, says that Germany is fully able to continue these payments. In actual practice Germany has met its obligations without any defaults.

If the committee is successful in reaching an agreement on the total amount to be paid, Germany's financial conditions will be vastly improved. The present state of uncertainty will be ended and definite plans can be made for handling the debt.

Although the United States government refuses to consider the two problems as one, the reparations settlement will also have an important bearing on the collection of debts of the other allied nations to us. The other European nations insist that the payments from Germany must be enough to provide for the liquidation of their debts to the United States.

THE floatation of a tremendous German bond issue to refund at least a large share of the reparations payments is considered to be quite probable as a portion of the plan. This loan would be allotted to the various allied countries. The United States having the greatest available capital would probably take half of the bonds or more.

The proceeds of the bonds would be used to meet the German reparation indebtedness and a large share of the funds would be transferred back to the United States in liquidation of allied debts to us.

The appointment of Mr. Morgan to the committee undoubtedly reflects this possibility, since the house of Morgan would be indispensible in such a gigantic transaction.

THE effect of the financing would be that some of the European nations would find themselves free of many of their financial troubles. All of the countries involved, including the United States, would be in a position to reduce their national debts from the proceeds of the German payments. This would leave them free either to reduce taxes necessary for bond interest or to undertake public works improvements on a scale which was impossible in the past.

It would amount to transfering a large share of the war debt directly to Germany, although the German annual payments would be no larger than at present.

The fact that most of the money to be raised by the sale of the bonds would be used in the countries of origin would eliminate the necessity for unusually great transfers of actual gold which might unsettle foreign trade relations.

FRANCE will receive more than half of whatever Germany pays so that she will be able to retire much of what she owes the United States and Great Britain and still have funds for reconstruction in the areas of war damage.

All this will have a far-reaching effect on the financial operations of the United States government and may result in the more rapid retirement of government obligations This would help American business by the ultimate reduction of taxes.

Similar changes in other countries will mean that foreign purchasing power will be increased and that our growing export markets will be further stimulated.

DILATORY I. C. C. DECISIONS HIT BY COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Delays that have intervened in action by Interstate Commerce Commission are said to have resulted in an adverse opinion of the commission's procedure on the part of President Coolidge.

The President feels that one of the great difficulties facing those who bring problems to the commission is its delay in taking any sort of action. He also is said to believe that the government itself has been faced with problems arising from dilatory decisions.

One case which Mr. Coolidge has studied arose when the commission sought to fix the payment rates for the carriage of mail by railroads. The commission took three years to fix a rate and then awarded the carriers $45,000,000 in back pay dating to the inception of the controversy.

FUNDS ORDERED HELD UP

The President has felt it impossible to approve such an award and has directed that the postoffice withhold the funds, planning to let the matter be litigated in the court of claims. He does consider, however, that this sort of an issue between the government and the railroads would never have risen if there had been less than three years delay in deciding the case.

While the President is of the opinion that the membership of the commission is able and the questions before it are important, he would like to see more expedition in its transaction of business.

In connection with the consolidation of railroads, the President has nothing but approval for any program the commission may initiate in that field and understands that it has been repeatedly requesting Congress to change the legal requirement for the creation of a commission consolidation plan affecting all railroads.

RAILROAD BILL READY

Meanwhile, at the Senate, a subcommittee of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee completed its drafting of a railroad consolidation bill, representing months of study, which will be presented for action of the full committee probably next week by Senator Fess, Republican, Ohio.

The main provision of the legislation calls for amendment of the transportation act of 1920 to provide for consolidation of railroads. The consolidations would be authorized under federal authority but without compulsion.

CONSOLIDATION BAND ENDED

The present law allows mergers of railroads but forbids consolidations and this is the main corrective sought in the Fess measure. While compulsory consolidation is not provided, the Interstate Commerce Commission would be authorized to require incorporation of any line it deems vital to a proposed consolidation scheme, even if that line had not petitioned to be included.

Fears of opposition to the bill are held because of its proposal to repeal the clause in the present law requiring the Interstate Commerce Commission to draft a plan for unification of all the railroads. In eight years no workable plan has been put into effect by the commission.

The Bill also would do away with the present law whereby a dissenting block of minority stockholders may prevent mergers. Protection would be afforded dissenting minority stockholders but the measure would allow consolidations whenever the board of directors of a railroad in pursuance of the law and by a majority vote, decided upon action.

U. S. Plans Station As Radio Check-Up

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—A large constant frequency monitoring radio station, to be used by the Department of Commerce to test the use of air by radio broadcasters, wireless stations, aircraft and ships at sea, is expected to be erected in some middlewestern state within the next year.

At the request of the Department of Commerce, Chairman Elliott, of the House Public Buildings Committee, has introduced a bill to authorize the expenditure of $50,000 for the purchase of a site and buildings for the station to determine whether the air is being misused.

Foreigners Flee Beleaguered Afghan City

MOSCOW, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—The British and other foreign missions are preparing to evacuate Kabul, which is now in imminent danger of falling before the determined onslaughts of the united Shinwari and Jalalabad tribes, dispatches received here today from the Afghan capital stated.

The Kugistan troops of Habibullah Khan (Macha Sakao) have been forced to retreat to within 17 kilometers of Kabul, according to the dispatches.

The forces of Ali Achmed Khan are also threatening Sakao's forces from the north and inflicting heavy losses.

WIDOW SUING FOR $25,000

Charging she was defrauded out of $25,000, Mrs. Margaret L. Lineweaver, widow of Attorney Harry Lineweaver, through her guardian, the Commonwealth Trust Company, has filed suit in Common Pleas Court against Robert Stroup, of Dayton, O., to recover the money. Judge Harry H. Rowand fixed $2,500 as capias bail for Stroup.

Mrs. Lineweaver alleged she had an estate of $36,000 in May, 1928, when Stroup induced her to withdraw $25,000 and invest it in the Lineweaver-Stroup Soap Company, which was later incorporated in Ohio. She said Stroup deposited the money in a Cleveland bank in a joint account, on which either he or Mrs. Lineweaver could draw checks. She asserted that an original agreement drawn by her attorney was set aside by Stroup and a new agreement, changing the terms, was substituted by him. She further charges he at once withdrew $5,000 from the joint fund for himself and paid high salaries out of the money.

BUGS BAER Says

But the pedestrian starts out hitting on two and lands on one.

Arthur "Bugs" Baer

After looking over the traffic situation in Chicago, Richmond, Atlanta and the coast cities, we are convinced that a community center is a parking space entirely surrounded by deadlines.

Parking is now forbidden in New York and Paris. Lindbergh made his flight just in time.

A Kansas City man managed to reach his office yesterday in time to hang up an "Out to Lunch" sign.

But he had to put an ambulance gong on his bicycle to command respect.

Grover was singing that beautiful ballad, "In the gloaming."

Grover's version of it was, "In the gloaming, oh, my darling, when the lights are green and red."

Grover's stagger plan starts when the sun goes down and ends when the fuses blow out.

At twilight the pedestrians congest east and west while the automobiles jam north and south.

We would suggest that the plan could be accelerated by promoting some of the pedestrians to corporals.

The man said, "Nope. I'm a file-closer."

Having been in the Army himself in an effort to make the world safe from Dumbocracy, the cop saluted, pulled out a medal and decorated the citizen with the Croix de Street.

From now on everything is going to be all right if reckless chauffeurs can get over the idea that the village cemetery is the Sunday School picnic grounds.

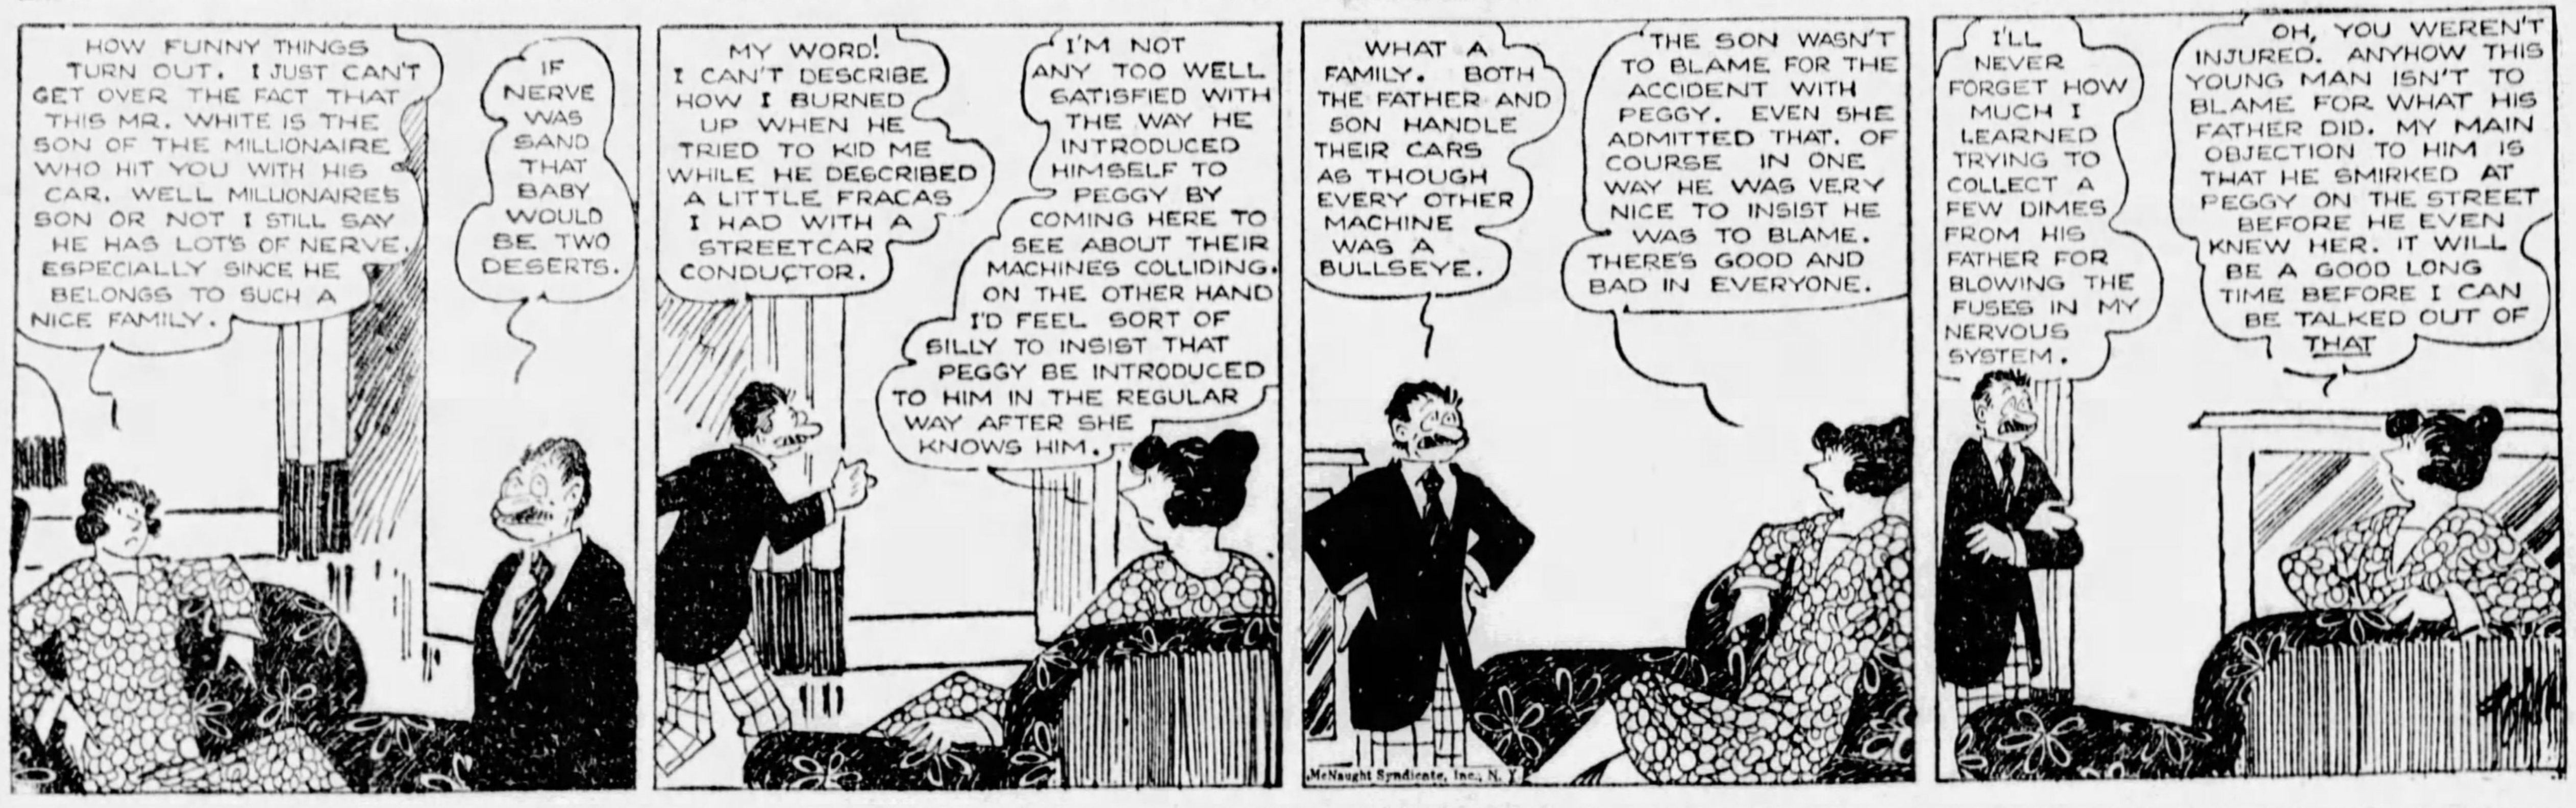
THE BUNGLE FAMILY

Ha, a Millionaire's Son!



HOW FUNNY THINGS TURN OUT. I JUST CAN'T GET OVER THE FACT THAT THIS MR. WHITE IS THE SON OF THE MILLIONAIRE WHO HIT YOU WITH HIS CAR. WELL MILLIONAIRE'S SON OR NOT I STILL SAY HE HAS LOTS OF NERVE. ESPECIALLY SINCE HE BELONGS TO SUCH A NICE FAMILY.
IF NERVE WAS SAND THAT BABY WOULD BE TWO DESERTS.
MY WORD! I CAN'T DESCRIBE HOW I BURNED UP WHEN HE TRIED TO KID ME WHILE HE DESCRIBED A LITTLE FRACAS I HAD WITH A STREETCAR CONDUCTOR.
I'M NOT ANY TOO WELL SATISFIED WITH THE WAY HE INTRODUCED HIMSELF TO PEGGY BY COMING HERE TO SEE ABOUT THEIR MACHINES COLLIDING. ON THE OTHER HAND I'D FEEL SORT OF SILLY TO INSIST THAT PEGGY BE INTRODUCED TO HIM IN THE REGULAR WAY AFTER SHE KNOWS HIM.
WHAT A FAMILY. BOTH THE FATHER AND SON HANDLE THEIR CARS AS THOUGH EVERY OTHER MACHINE WAS A BULLSEYE.
THE SON WASN'T TO BLAME FOR THE ACCIDENT WITH PEGGY. EVEN SHE ADMITTED THAT. OF COURSE IN ONE WAY HE WAS VERY NICE TO INSIST HE WAS TO BLAME. THERE'S GOOD AND BAD IN EVERYONE.
I'LL NEVER FORGET HOW MUCH I LEARNED TRYING TO COLLECT A FEW DIMES FROM HIS FATHER FOR BLOWING THE FUSES IN MY NERVOUS SYSTEM.
OH, YOU WEREN'T INJURED. ANYHOW THIS YOUNG MAN ISN'T TO BLAME FOR WHAT HIS FATHER DID. MY MAIN OBJECTION TO HIM IS THAT HE SMIRKED AT PEGGY ON THE STREET BEFORE HE EVEN KNEW HER. IT WILL BE A GOOD LONG TIME BEFORE I CAN BE TALKED OUT OF THAT

In Plate XII. Mr. Cruikshank shows what a life of bonbons and gin will lead to. In his efforts to escape honest toil young Willebrandt matriculates in college. He is here shown in his fraternity house, rudely awakened by the police, who have received complaints that the young man drives his roadster with glaring headlights. So they give him a dose of his own medicine. It serves you right, you toss-penny!

If Republicans Scrap Navy, Let People Do Same Thing by Them

With the urgent deficiency bill out of the way, the Naval Replacement Bill again becomes the unfinished business of the Senate.

And the American people will know within a week whether the Republican leaders of the Senate are going to put up a real fight to pass that bill in the form that it passed the House, or whether they are merely going to wage a sham battle in its behalf.

As it passed the House at the last session by a vote of more than five to one, this bill authorized the Navy Department to begin building within the next three years 15 10,000-ten cruisers and one aircraft carrier to take the place of ships long since obsolete.

An attempt will be made in the Senate to amend this bill by striking out the time clause and reducing the number of cruisers authorized from 15 to 10.

To adopt this amendment would not only overwhelmingly defeat the will of the House, but it would constitute a dishonest measure for an honest measure.

And the purpose of such substitution could only be to deceive the American people and afford new opportunity for the party in power to continue the game of politics it has been playing with the Navy for the last eight years.

Therefore, now is the time for every unconditional American who believes that this country is entitled to equality with the British upon the seas to keep his eye upon his two Senators in Congress.

That the British fleet is superior to the American fleet today is beyond question.

That the Hughes Naval Treaty of 1922 fixed equality with the British fleet as our future naval policy is beyond question.

That the Hughes Naval Treaty could never have been ratified without the assurance to the nation that in giving up superiority of the seas the United States would get for the future absolute equality with the British, is beyond question.

That even the authorization and prompt construction of all the 15 new crusiers for which the pending bill provides would still leave the United States below equality with the British in cruisers mounting guns over 6-inch caliber, is beyond question.

But what is still an open question is whether the Republican leaders of the Senate are going to put up a real fight for the pending bill as it passed the House, time clause and all, or only continue to make the Navy the victim of the game of partisan politics which this party has been playing ever since it entered power in 1921.

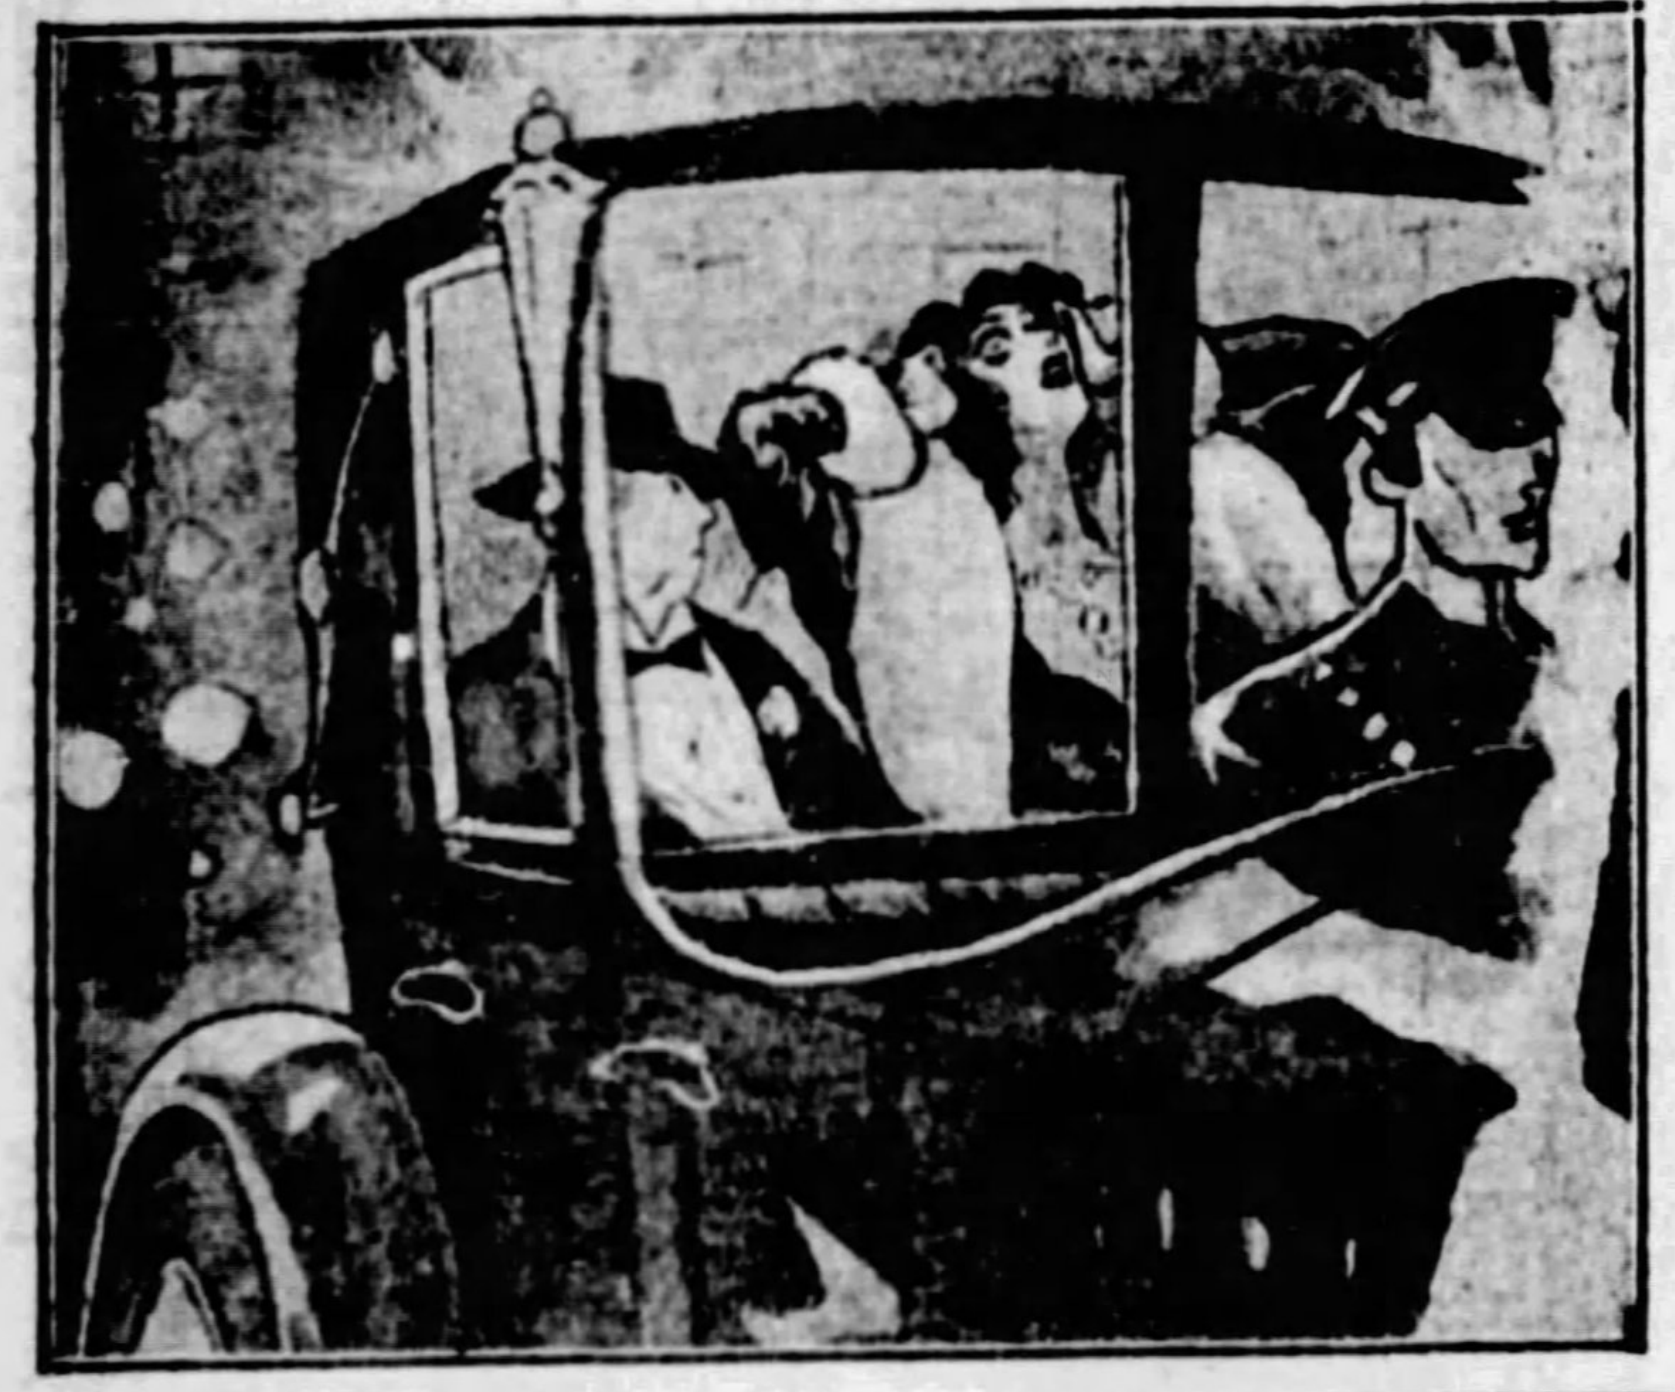
In other words, the open question now before the Senate ther the Republican leaders in Congress are going to t the established naval policy of equality with the Brit. whether they are going to scrap it.

ıı they are going to support it, they will pass the pending bill in the form that it passed the House. If they are going to scrap it, they will mutilate that bill by cutting out the time clause and cutting down the number of cruisers for which it provides.

In which case the voters should scrap the disloyal Republican Senators and put the control of the Senate in more patriotic hands.

The Spoiled Wife

She Needs a Washtub.



GUESS WHAT THIS LADY IS SAYING.

This picture, reproduced from that sprightly little publication, "The New Yorker," which must be all tired out from being funny all the time, shows the modern SPOILED wife.

She is saying, as she tears her pretty hair, lifts her large eyes to heaven, pitying herself:

"You are so kind to me, and I am so tired of it all."

You may not realize it, but, sad to relate, hard to believe, and otherwise deplorable, is the fact that this picture is NO exaggeration.

There are thousands of wives just as much spoiled as this one, thousands of poor, placid, puzzled husbands that go on taking things as they come, satisfied with the well paid doctor's statement, "You do not UNDERSTAND your dear wife's highly nervous, refined, sensitive temperament."

An unfortunate "Big Butter and Egg Man," or Wall street speculator, or automobile producer, or what not, husband, may not be everything that the lady's fancy could imagine. He is different from the tenor they have just heard singing at the opera; different from the young gigolo gentleman, recently tripping the light fantastic before her eyes on the cabaret floor.

The husband, with the worried expression and the big dough bag, has ALL sorts of defects, doubtless. But, after all, she married him.

And what SHE needs is a cookstove and a washtub, a washboard, and the soiled linen of about eight children and a husband working on the railroad.

She wouldn't be "so tired of it all" if she had a job that would make her REALLY TIRED.

Rich, and 10 times MORE foolish husbands, please take note of it.

Tales That Are Told

Trying to Please Her

IT was her birthday, and her husband had gone off to the office without so much as wishing her many happy returns of the day.

When he returned that evening, however, she was overjoyed to notice that he carried a small parcel under his arm. As he put the little package down on the hall table and kissed her more tenderly than usual, she realized that she had done him an injustice.

"I thought you'd forgotten all about it," she said.

"Pipe-cleaners!" gasped the woman, peering over his shoulder. "My Stars! Pipe-cleaners!"

"Yes, pet," was the virtuous answer. "I knew you'd be pleased. You never did like me using your hairpins, did you?"

The Last Fence

A PERSPIRING man, heavily laden with parcels of all sizes and dimensions, bustled into the railway station and finally stopped, panting and exhausted, beside a small woman who was sitting peacefully in the waiting-room.

"There, now," he exclaimed, "I know what you're going to say, Jane—the same old question. My dear, I've forgotten nothing."

"But, John——"

"No, I will not. I tell you I've got everything—forgotten nothing. Here's the what-you-call-it for your mother, and there's a book for Dora. There you are—the whole list, and not a thing missing."

His wife smiled, and asked:

"Yes, dear, but which shop did you leave your hat in?"

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Reality

NOT of the sleazy fabric of a dream
Must life be made; but of reality,
Enduring stuff, though it may lack the gleam
And gloss that in illusion's web we see.

Reality, though it be dipped in dyes
As sombre as the hues poor workmen wear,
And though it own no charm for casual eyes,
Has virtues that spring not from being fair.

It is reality alone can give
A touch of splendor to a barren life:
Through stark reality alone men live,
The rest is futile fury, foolish strife.
Prize not the sleazy fabric of a dream,
But choose through all your days to be, not seem!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

BLASE husbands—

Bored wives—

What's the matter?

"We love each other," they say, "and there isn't anyone else. But somehow the interest seems to have gone out of everything."

They love—but they're no longer "in love."

"It isn't loving each other that's the important thing between husbands and wives," cries Christine, "it's being in love!"

Love can be as remote as the morning star—

Or as near as the pulse of your leaping heart.

You can "love" the martyrs of Armenia—

Or the lepers in Mologai—

Or St. Francis of Assisi—

Or Abraham Lincoln—

Or even your mother-in-law.

You can love multitudes of people with tenderness and tolerance and gratitude and generosity and good nature and other nice, moderate virtues—

And such love will sustain you through every relationship in life save that of marriage—

But you can't just "love" your husband or your wife and experience real marriage—

You must be "in love."

And to be "in love" you must love a perpetual adventure.

You must manage to retain your curiosity about each other.

You must respect each other's privacy—

And stimulate each other's imagination—

Otherwise your marriage is going to go as flat on your hands as last week's waffle.

There is a very real physical reaction behind the state of "being in love—"

Lovers are actually magnetized—their natures become two poles which give and take of the mysterious current of romance.

Demagnetize those natures—stop "being in love"—which is a vital affair of the heart and merely love, which is largely an affair of the head—and you have removed the magic from marriage.

We don't emphasize this fact strongly enough.

We're sure that having fallen in love, that fascinating condition will endure.

We feel that the real enemies of marriage are other men or other woman, drink, gambling or similar dangerous distractions. Not all.

THE WORST ENEMY OF MARRIAGE IS BOREDOM—

LOVING WITHOUT BEING IN LOVE.

If you are about to marry, decide to keep yourself "in love."

If you are already married, and begin to get a bit stale, make every effort to get back to that happy condition.

Take vacations from each other—

Spring surprises on each other—

Be a person once more, and not just a husband or wife.

Renew the batteries—vitalize your affection—change it from a dead line to a living current flowing between your two hearts.

HUB OF UNIVERSE

By Garrett P. Serviss

ONE conclusion drawn from recent astronomical exploration is that the Milky Way (which includes within its boundaries the whole universe known to us, with the exception of the distant wisps of the spiral nebulae, now supposed to be exterior "universes") is in rotation about a definite center. This center, according to Dr. Harlow Shapely, is in the constellation Sagittarius, about 50,000 light-years away from us. The indications are that 10 thousand million stars circle about this universal hub, and that at our distance from it the time required for a complete turn is 300,000,000 years.

Now, 50,000 light-years correspond to nearly 300,000,000,000,000,000 miles, and a circle having a radius of that length has a circumference of 1,844,000,000,000,000,000 miles. Considering the uncertainties of the estimates we may lump this as two quintillion (2,000,000,000,000,000,000) miles, which is the distance that our little earth, hopping along with the slave gang of suns to which its own sun belongs, has to cover in 300,000,000 years, the rate of travel being more than 6,000,000,000 miles a year!

But apparently these slaves of the hub, tramping with the thunder march of suns, too mighty for human ears to hear, around the treadmill of the universe, are unruly under their yokes, for individual watching shows that they move in diverse directions, and at various speeds, among one another. The imagination is daunted by the lurching, halting, plunging of the great gang as it swings along. Occasionally, if theories be right, two huge straining orbs approach so close that their mutual attractions grasp them like the tentacles of battling octopi in a struggling embrace, from which spout fiery gouts that slowly collect and condense into worlds. For so, says the planetesimal hypothesis, our own earth and its sisters were born, to be rocked, as now appears, in the cradling rhythm of an endless voyage.

It is a very old idea that the whole starry system rotates around a center. More than once before it has been thought that that center was discovered. Before the middle of the nineteenth century a German astronomer, Maedler, selected the star Alcyone, the brightest of the Pleiades, as the universal hub, and certain persons dwelt upon the majestic thought that there, in that glimmering star, surrounded by its clustering sisters, human eyes could behold the site of the throne of the Almighty. But mathematics removed Alcyone's crown.

Bible Passages

Sin

(Romans 6; 1-14)

WHAT shall we say then? Shall we continue in sin, that grace may abound?

God forbid. How shall we, that are dead to sin, live any longer therein?

Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death?

Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life.

For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection:

Knowing this, that our old man is crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin.

For he that is dead is freed from sin.

Now if we be dead with Christ, we believe that we shall also live with him:

Knowing that Christ being raised from the dead dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over him.

For in that he died, he died unto sin once: but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God.

Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, that ye should obey it in the lusts thereof.

Neither yield ye your members as instruments of unrighteousness unto sin: but yield yourselves unto God, as those that are alive from the dead, and your members as instruments of righteousness unto God.

For sin shall not have dominion over you: for ye are not under the law, but under grace.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

YOU can't always tell whether a kid is going to get the lesson you want him to or not, when you're trying to improve him. There was a kid by the name of Ben that went to a dog show with his dad, and there was a lot of fun watching the dogs perform.

"You see, Ben," says his dad, "these dogs have learned to mind. They know what obey means. Now, I've been trying to teach you to obey for years, and you don't do half as well as them dogs."

"Yes, but Dad," says the smart kid, "them dogs have got a mighty smart man for a trainer."

Henry and History

By Herbert Kaufman

UNCLE SAM, the automobile industry's silent partner, expects to pocket about three-quarters of a billion dollars for his share, in 1929.

General Motors, of course, will contribute heaviest in the whackup; but Henry Ford, whose favorite authors should be Hans Christian Andersen and the brothers Grimm, must pay the largest individual chunk of taxes.

He doesn't read fairy tales, although he occasionally composes one; as witness his declared conviction that the ancients were familiar with electricity, used telephones, traveled in planes and knew all about radio.

Mr. Ford is so busy making history that he doesn't have time to study it, and thereby muffs most of the thrills it might supply him.

Yesterday would gladly furnish facts and figures with which to measure the significance of his fortune.

Values are relative—established by contrast.

All one-eyed men should take the advice of the proverb and visit "the country of the blind."

Mr. Ford is aware that he can "live like a king," but since he hasn't bothered to investigate how kings usually lived, he cheats himself of some very flattering comparisons.

For instance, there was Charles VII of France, who sometimes went hungry, and often cadged a joint of mutton or a spare cold fowl from neighboring pantries.

And the Roman Emperor Aurelian, compelled to deny his wife a coveted silk dress because the material was too expensive.

Charles II long hadn't a penny to spend or a change of clothes.

Louis XVIII once taught music in a New York boarding school. And the second Napoleon pounded the streets of London as a uniformed bobby.

Realms were frequently in such financial plight that Crown officers had to make personal touches from Tom-Dick-and-Harry to meet the payroll.

Far from returning such overcollections as the recent treasury refund to U. S. Steel, total state revenues didn't reach $26,000,000 in a whole generation.

As late as the seventeenth century the British national debt of $15,000,000 seemed "an overwhelming burthen to the country."

What fun it must be for Mr. Ford to imagine himself in such days, and with his means—at a time when "it was necessary for the Chancellor of the Exchequer, with hat in hand, to go up and down Cheapside and Cornhill, attended by the Lord Mayor and by the Aldermen, to make up a sum by borrowing 100 pounds from this hosier and 200 pounds from that ironmonger.

Paris, of course, never changes. Antiquity is its chiefest charm. The only noticeable change of the year is in the new electrical display for the Citroen car on Eiffel Tower. There is a rising and falling fountain of light the full length of the structure until the name stands out in vivid relief against the plush of night. The Citroen is the flivver of France and somehow receives first consideration in traffic.

The devotion paid old favorites here is unknown on the American stage. Mistinguett, near 60, remains a darling of the music halls just as Bernhardt, an ancient crone with a wooden leg, held audiences breathless to the finish. Never beautiful, Mistinguett has become so faded and wrinkled she is almost grotesque. But, like Frankie Bailey, she has stately limbs, legs or whatever they are for the current season. After seeing her this evening I somehow wished legs were still a mystery and that all of us longed again for a windy day around the Flatiron building.

A favorite eating place in Paris has taken in more territory. Formerly it was called "The Chicago Inn," on avenue de la Bordonnais. This trip I notice it has become "The Chicago-Texas Inn," thereby neatly bidding for panhandle patronage. Its proprietor and chef, Willis Morgan, is a war left-over and a former dining car cook back home. He refuses to go native, serving only such dishes as corn pone, pork chops, corned beef hash, pork and baked beans, brown biscuits, fried chicken and gravy, T-bone steaks and—five minutes for a good cry—chittlins.

Something should be said about not taking a home grouch to the shop or the office.

Disputes arise in the home at breakfast time and their effect unfits the men and women who indulge in them for good work at their places of employment later.

To start work in an ill humor is a handicap.

Careful, high-grade work cannot be done under such conditions.

It may result in the whole department being more or less affected.

Do you not often start your day's work in a bad mood?

What do you get out of such impulses?

What do you do, actuated by such feelings?

Do you give way or control yourself?

What are the causes of argument in your family?

Isn't it true that you are largely responsible for them?

You know pretty well what will start a fuss, and because you don't feel just right you attack at that point—and the fight is on.

Don't do it.
